Wilmington officer treated for injuries

By STEPHEN BJORK

Police arrested two men following a high-speed chase that culminated in a crash directly in front of the North Intermediate School on Monday afternoon.

K9 officer Eric Palmer was on routine patrol when he observed a 1996 black Honda Civic pull into Sonny's Mobil On The Run at the corner of Lowell Street and West Street. A routine check of the vehicle's license plate indicated that it

Mills Corp sold

Tewksbury mall likely to still be in the cards

By JAYNE W. MILLER

TEWKSBURY - Last week a Canadian based investment firm announced a merger with The Mills Corporation, a deal worth approximately $1.35 billion that pulls Mills out of a financial quagmire that threatened the proposed Tewksbury Mills mall project.

The proposed merger, which must be approved by shareholders later this year, announced the acquisition of The Mills Corp. by Brookfield Asset Management, Inc., a global asset manager focused on property and other infrastructure assets with over $50 billion of

Don't miss your chance; get tickets now

WILMINGTON - Last year's jazz performance by Made In The Shade had parents and children literally dancing in the aisles of Wilmington High School's auditorium. Expect no less on February 1st when Ball In The House brings it's a cappella sounds to the Wilmington High School gymnasium.

With tickets available through the schools and at the Recreation office at Town Hall, Ball In The House's concert is open to the entire Wilmington community. The performance is being sponsored by the Wilmington Educational fund, working in conjunction with the school's Townwide Enrichment Committee. The concert will also include performances by the Wilmington Middle and High School choral groups.

The truth is; the term "a cappella" is not broad enough to accurately describe a Ball In The House performance. Don't expect a barbershop quartet sound from these young men.

Political season is in full swing and the march toward Wilmington's annual town election and Wilmington's annual town meeting is well underway. But what does Wilmington's Redevelopment Authority do? What is the scope of authority carried by the Board of Selectmen? How much of Wilmington's educational curriculum falls within the School Committee's purview? As a service to our readers, this year the Town Crier will run a series of articles detailing functions and responsibilities of the various boards and committees that have positions appearing on this year's ballot. The process that shapes Wilmington's annual town meeting each year will also be explored as we get closer to its scheduled date of May 5th.

Redevelopment Authority:

A Closer Look

By JULIE FENNELL

Wilmington's Redevelopment Authority currently has four members each serving individual five-year terms. The present members include Chairman Charles Gilbert

Jason Tildsley, Edward Loud and John Goggin. Loud's term expires this year and his seat will be up for grabs in this year's annual town election. Additionally, a second "state appointed" seat is also available this year and is generally nominated by a town's state representative and appointed by the Governor.

Chairman Charles Gilbert is serving his third term and described for the Town Crier the overall goals and responsibilities of the Authority.

WILMINGTON - It was an emotional evening at the Knight of Columbus last Wednesday night.

Wilmington's Local Heroes, a volunteer group dedicated to sending CARE packages to our servicemen and women serving overseas during the War on Terror and to supporting the families of those brave men and women here at home, sent out its 3,000th package last week.

Quite a milestone for a group that couldn't believe it was sending out a whopping 12 packages on its very first night back in November of 2003. Since that initial gathering, Local Heroes has missed only one Wednesday evening and has gathered the momentum of a juggernaut. The entire community has stood behind the effort through wildly successful fundraising efforts. Those funds pay for the items that go into the CARE packages, they pay for postage to send the packages (which can run up to $500 per week), and they even go toward helping the families here at home. In 2004, for instance, the Local Heroes Fund rebuilt a local woman's front stairs, which had become damaged while her husband was serving in harm's way.

The CARE packages each contain a wide variety of items. Those serving overseas are in need of nearly every so-called "luxury" that we take for granted here at home.

Items as simple as snacks, candy, DVD's, and especially toiletries and personal hygiene products, can be very difficult to obtain. In at least one case, for instance, Local Heroes heard of a soldier having to pay $20 for a set of razor blades. Local Heroes also heard the tale of one young lady serving overseas who ran out of toothpaste and was having trouble finding transportation to the supply outlet. That very day she received two packages from Local Heroes. Thanks to those two packages, she and all of her girlfriends didn't have to buy a thing for two weeks.

Standard CARE packages are not the only items sent overseas. Our troops are faced with downtime, and that downtime can be tough to fill in the absence of loved ones and home. From time to time, Local Heroes are asked for specific items that go beyond what would normally be found in a CARE package - and the group does everything possible to meet every golf clubs.

The presence of Local Heroes, founded right here in Wilmington by Louis Cimaglia, has gone way beyond our small-town borders. In December of 2005 former Secretary of Defense, Donald Rumsfeld, told Cimaglia that Local Heroes was making history in a similar vein as the legendary rubber drives held during World War II.

Three photo albums packed with photos, letters, citations, and commendations chronicles the growth of Local Heroes. The first album is crammed primarily with photos of all the volunteers and their efforts, along with several short newspaper articles about the group.

The second album displays a telltale shift with the majority of the materials - photos and letters - coming from appreciative servicemen and women. The third album continues the trend, with the notable addition of numerous citations.

Though the mission of the group hasn't changed one iota since its inception, the dynamic between the individuals in the group has evolved into something more than expected. It has become something between a support group and a family. Many, but by no means all, of the volunteers that show up on Wednesday have children or other family members serving overseas. They work hard, but they also share with one another and they lean on one another. With a wide smile, one volunteer recently told Cimaglia to take her son off the list - he's coming home.

Another volunteer just recently became a Wednesday night regular - her son's tour just began. Everyone there knows what she is going through, and everyone there will help her get through it. Local Heroes is always ready to embrace a new member to the family.

Before walking in the door last Wednesday night, the group knew that they were knocking on the door of 3,000 packages. As things got underway, however, it became apparent that their supplies would leave them 10 or 12 boxes shy of the goal. That's when Bob Ticehurst stepped in.

It was Ticehurst's first visit to the Local Heroes operation. He is the president of "Got Books?", a for-profit professional fundraising company located in North Reading. Got Books? helps charities and non-profit groups raise money through used book sales, which are held every Friday and Saturday at the company's location on Concord Street. Half of all the weekend book sale profits go directly to the company's fundraising partners.

Ticehurst had heard about Local Heroes and came down to see if his company could offer assistance with fundraising. When he learned how close the group was to reaching its goal, he pulled out his wallet. With a list of items needed for CARE packages, Ticehurst took his company van to Market Basket.

When Ticehurst arrived back at the Knight of Columbus Hall, the Local Heroes went into action like a well-oiled machine, unloading the groceries and sorting the items by type. Stations were set-up and boxes made their way along the fold-up tables as if on an assembly line. The cardboard boxes themselves, incidentally,

It's Your Money

by Joyce Brisbois

NEW JOB, OLD 401(K)

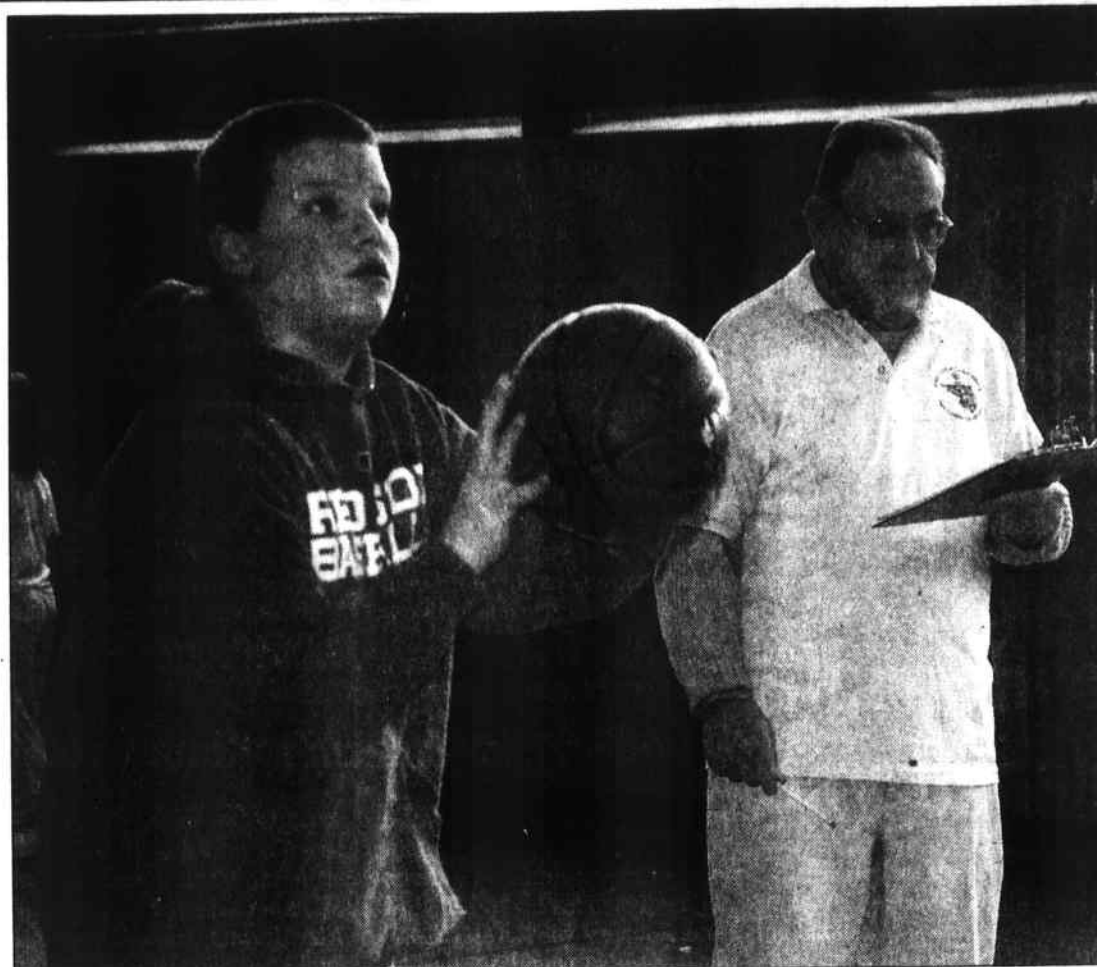

Switching jobs? Assuming you've built up a nice little balance—or a big one—in your company's retirement plan, what should you do with it? What NOT to do is cash it out. You'd owe income taxes on the total and, more important, you'd lose the future tax-deferred growth of the money. Even $20,000 could be $130,000 by retirement.

You could leave the funds where they are, but you'd have little control over them and limited communication about your account status. Better: transfer the funds to the new employer's retirement plan. You get the advantage of keeping all your retirement assets in one place and up-to-date information on them.

Better yet: roll over the funds in your old 401(k) into an IRA that lets you control the money yourself and offers the widest range of investment options. Be sure, though, that the funds are moved directly to the new account, or the old employer may have to withhold 20 percent for taxes.

When it comes to questions about taxes and finance, come to the folks at:

Wilmington High School chosen as Commonwealth Compass School

Wilmington high school is one of 38 Massachusetts schools recently selected to be named a 2007 Commonwealth Compass School based on student performance and improvement on the Massachusetts Comprehensive Assessment System (MCAS) in 2006.

"The Compass School Program is a component of the Commonwealth's School and District Accountability System designed to recognize, celebrate and support significant and continuous improvement in public schools across Massachusetts. As a 2007 Commonwealth Compass School, Wilmington High School will be awarded a $2500 grant to help sustain improvement efforts." (MA DOE selection letter- January 16, 2007), Wilmington High School was selected based on having a composite performance index above the state average in Mathematics and English Language Arts. Wilmington High School also had significant gains in the number of students who scored in the advanced and proficient categories of the MCAS.

"The compass school designation serves as confirmation of the hard work our teachers and students embark upon each day," said the High School Principal, Mr. Tracy. "Specifically, time is taken to design and examine changes in the curriculum and how these changes relate to success within the classroom. I am proud of this accomplishment and look forward to continued improvements at Wilmington High School."

A little dusting of snow on the ground was enough inspiration for the Wilmington Ski and Snowboard Club to finally be able to load the bus and head for Bradford Hill. Among them were, North Intermediate students, Anthony Vitale and Michael Maggioni.

Shawsheen Tech hosts special day for shelters

BILLERICA - There were presents, tasty snacks and a dancing Santa.

The annual Holiday Party for local shelters hosted by Shawsheen Valley Technical High School was recently held at the school.

Three Lowell-based homeless shelters, Milly's Place, the House of Hope and Merrimack House, sent a combination of 40 children and 29 parents to Shawsheen Tech for an evening of fun in the school's cafeteria that featured gifts, plenty of food and music.

"The party was successful, as usual, and awesome," said Maria Baker, a teacher at Shawsheen Tech and one of the event's organizers. "It is so nice to see the looks on the children's faces when they see Santa and are opening their gifts."

"Everyone was having a blast," said Robert Raia, a junior at Shawsheen Tech who helped out with the celebration for the second straight year. "All of the kids were having so much fun and they were pretty good dancers - better than me anyway."

Santa Claus for the night was physical education teacher Jay Tildsley, who not only handed out gifts and granted wishes to youngsters, but also stepped onto the dance floor to the delight of all of those in attendance.

"It's a very rewarding experience," said Tildsley, a football and track coach at the school. "The kids really love it and it makes you feel good."

Many of the gifts were donated by Shawsheen Tech faculty.

"I personally think the best part is seeing our students interact with the children from the shelters," Baker said. "The Shawsheen Tech students who help love this night and really look forward to it. They help the children decorate gingerbread houses, put on fake holiday tattoos and plenty of other things."

"We had a lot of fun playing with the kids," added Lindsay Visco, a Shawsheen Tech junior and a health student at the school. "This year we made paper Christmas trees too. They all seemed so happy. You'd never know that they were living in a homeless shelter."

Donations included pastries made by Shawsheen Tech students, food from Market Basket, transportation provided by A&F Bus Company and Patti Swift, who volunteered her time driving party-goers to and from Shawsheen Tech, and Verizon also donated pizza from Pizzeria Mia in Billerica and beverages.

The Boutwell School in Wilmington helped out with gift giving and candy bags. Sharon Tildsley and her staff at the Boutwell School organized the help there.

"We have been very lucky as far as the donations we get from various companies and Shawsheen Tech employees to continue with this event," Baker said. "We just received a thank you letter from one of the families at the shelter thanking us," said Baker. "They said what a wonderful time they had and how special we made their holiday. I think that is what it is all about."

Students like Visco plan to return to help out with next year's event.

"Actually," Visco said, "I already can't wait until next year."

Teacher Tribute success

Dear Editor,

On behalf of the Wilmington Educational Foundation, I wish to thank all those Wilmington Public Schools families who participated in the Foundation's recent holiday-season Teacher Tribute Program. As a result of these families' generosity, 49 teachers and other staff members were honored with Teacher Tribute Certificates issued by the Foundation, and over $1,500.00 was raised to benefit the Wilmington Educational Foundation.

These certificates are important reminders to teachers that we appreciate and recognize their daily efforts in educating our children. The funds raised by the Teacher Tribute Program will be used by the Wilmington Educational Foundation to provide innovative and creative programs to benefit Wilmington students.

The Wilmington Educational Foundation was established in 1994 with the mission of "The Pursuit of Excellence in Education through the development and distribution of private resources to benefit and further enrich students of the Wilmington School District". So far this year, the Foundation has helped to support a bully-prevention program, new software and hardware evaluation, a staff professional development keynote speaker, the author visit associated with the 2007 Wilmington Reads program at the public library, and a music scholarship sponsored by the Wilmington School/Business Partnership honoring Frank Sullivan, a local business person integral to the success of both the Foundation and the Partnership. In the coming months, look for the Foundation's updated web site and the announcement of additional grants, as well as the exciting upcoming Ball in the House Family Concert Fundraiser on Thursday evening, February 1st at 7 p.m. at the High School gym. In addition to the dynamic sounds of Ball in the House's a cappella talent, the audience will enjoy performances by the High School and Middle School choral groups. All proceeds will be used to fund future grant opportunities. As the Foundation is able to increase its support of our town's public schools, our children's education will be even further enhanced.

Thanks again to all who participated in the Teacher Tribute Program for their support of the Wilmington Educational Foundation.

Sincerely,
Jacquie Raffi
President, Wilmington Educational Foundation
Wilmington

Fortnight in Review

by Jayne W. Miller

A few years ago, on a spontaneous trip to Williams Sonoma to purchase special cutters for a recipe I wanted to try, the tire blew out on my minivan on the highway. I had my four year old son and infant daughter asleep in the backseat, no cell phone, and no real expectation of fixing the thing alone. I didn't have flares, reflectors, or any idea of how I was going to get out of this one.

Before I go further, and in the interest of fairness, I should state that my husband and I built our marriage on a sort of bad Karma/Karma. Not to be punny, we just had a lot of automotive bad luck. In one case our only car, a midsize Mazda sedan, caught fire on Route 128. The electrical system caught fire and melted a crater the size of a basketball in the dashboard. My husband, again without a cell phone, called the fire department on the phone of a fellow commuter that kindly stopped (probably had some laughs over it too, and who can blame him?). Because it was the interior of the car that was on fire, the fire engines drove by a couple of times before stopping, and then didn't believe that the car was actually on fire (the heavy layer of soot on the windows looked a lot like tinted glass) until one fire fighter opened the door to a thick waft of acrid smoke.

Another car, a hand-me-down through 4 generations, was so old that we had to repair it just to get it to pass inspection. Brake lights refused to stay fixed, the air conditioning gave up the ghost, the radio was kaput, the gas gauge stubbornly stuck at empty despite a filled tank, and a few rusted holes in the bodywork big enough for a raccoon to crawl through.

Once, the heating system in our minivan let go on a trip home from Maine in February. That was special, because in order to run heat in the back seats the system required running the fan in the front as well. So while my husband and I froze to our seats, our kids slept soundly in back for the remaining three hours. I couldn't feel my feet for three days.

So, there I was, a silly twit without phone or clue, stuck in the breakdown lane of 128 with my wounded van, woefully distant from my destination. I didn't know whether to wake the kids and go far away from the side of the road and risk being covered (literally) in ticks (which, I'm sorry to say has happened before) or keep them strapped in the van, a veritable target for bad drivers. I stayed put and waited for someone driving by to call the police and report that some idiot woman in her gold mom-mobile had a smoking tire and was stuck in transportation limbo. While waiting, quite a few cars and a couple of semi's drifted into the breakdown lane, as if my mini-van had a sort of gravitational pull on the cars driving by.

Eventually a state trooper on his way home stopped and saved my bacon. He called me a tow, positioned his car to protect mine, and informed me that the thing to do in such an incident is get away from the car because too many people stopped in breakdown lanes have been killed by morons that crash into them.

Once my vehicle was hauled onto the flatbed of the tow I was stymied as to how to best strap my children into the petite cab of the truck. I needed three seatbelts, and one was already being used by the driver.

Suddenly, out of the midst of the clamor and confusion, an angel in blue jeans arrived on the scene, complete with non wounded minivan and a few car seats of her own. Apparently she drove by, saw my disabled car and me holding the infant carrier with my 10-week old baby inside. Knowing that any mother would be worried about how to safely manage the tow she kindly stopped to offer us a ride to anywhere we needed to go.

Though she's from Wilmington, she happened to be in Burlington that late afternoon with enough free time to ferry a stranger and her children to a car repair shop. Sent by God, right place at the right time, call it what you want. Regrettably, don't remember her name, but I do remember her car seats and how my little baby looked so small in one, her Kate Spade handbag that I admired, and her curly brunette hair. At one point I was reduced to gushing my thanks but she put me at ease, saying she was doing her good deed and that she was "only getting into heaven on the family plan."

Her act of kindness has etched a place within my cynical soul and I know with certainty that there are genuinely good people, caring people in our midst.

I don't know how to thank her, so I hope this column is enough until I meet her again. If you know her or think you might send her my email address, I'd love to give her proper thanks.

And yes, I did get a cell phone. But just this week, I washed it.

Jayne can't be reached on her cell phone just now; but you can email her at jaynewmiller@comcast.net.

Peter Dolan is a contributor to The Woburn Daily Times Chronicle and is a freelance journalist, currently in Iraq. He will be embedded with the Massachusetts National Guard 1060th Transportation Company, based at Camp Taji, 20 miles north of Baghdad, and has agreed to provide the Town Crier with a weekly chronicle of his experiences.

Peter Dolan; reporting from Iraq

The Chinook helicopter went wheels up and slowly lifted off the ground to begin its gradual ascent above the Green Zone and into the night sky above Baghdad. It was 1AM Sunday morning. My destination was Taji, 20 miles away, and as the first man off I was the last one on. This afforded me the best view of the sprawling metropolis below, brilliantly lit and seemingly placid, and of the second Chinook that had followed us up. The ramp entrance in the rear of the big bird remained open, and I watched the tail gunner double check his fastening belt and carefully position himself at the very edge of the ramp behind his machine gun, inches away from the open air. Transfixed for the first few minutes by the awesome sight below, I quickly glanced to my left at the soldiers and marines that had packed the 11-ton machine. Just then, several loud firecracker pops sounded yards away, and I turned to see the gunner dart to the left side of his machine gun, away from the white flashes that were going off just yards from his position at the bottom of the angled ramp.

A close miss, I thought, and why wouldn't an insurgent try and take down the plump and slow rising target? The gunner moved right back to his position behind his gun, and another check of the human cargo that was squeezed into every seat of the Chinook revealed no discernible reactions. With the ramp open, the twin rotors above were deafening and communicating was not an option. Once at cruising altitude the Chinook can reach 200 mph, and within minutes Iraq's own city of lights was fading fast into the horizon. Not long after, the Chinook approached the base at Taji and gradually touched down. The gunner walked back up the ramp and, using both hands, made the "T" sign to indicate that anyone on-board traveling to Taji had arrived.

After unfastening myself and grabbing my gear, I ran down the ramp and onto the runway, where the gunner was now standing. I motioned to him and as he leaned his head closer, I screamed into his face, just loud enough to be heard above the roar of the rotors, "What did they fire at us, sir?" He screamed back, "Those were just chaffing flares, sir, no worries."

Chaffing flares are released either automatically, to divert any heat seeking surface to air missile when the helo's sensors detect any electronic tracking below, or by the pilots when the lead bird in any formation is turning sharply.

He's right, I thought, there were no more worries for me, I had reached my destination. Reaching the edge of the airfield, I turned back and watched the two Chinooks lift off and away, several more stops ahead of them. I offered a quick prayer for their safety and walked off to find the PAX Terminal. For America, it had been a terrible day in Iraq.

The small terminal next to the helicopter landing field inside the Green Zone is open 24/7, and most of the time bustling with activity. I had arrived there from BIAP via Blackhawk late in the afternoon, and after checking in with the fantastic men and women that staff the Army press office inside the US Embassy, I had returned to settle in and wait for my flight to Taji. There is a comfortable room set up inside the Embassy for media waiting to be transported out, but the people-watching at the landing zone terminal is far more interesting. Saturday was no exception, and over the next several hours, soldiers, marines, special operators, and various agency types passed their time by watching Armed Forces TV, reading, and making new friendships. It's unlikely that any of them knew that at 3:50 that afternoon a Blackhawk had been shot down northwest of Baghdad, killing all 12 American soldiers on board. Witnesses reported seeing the helicopter being struck by a missile and on fire, clearly out of control before crashing near Baqouba, in the violent Diyala province. An insurgent web site took credit for downing the helicopter, claiming to have used a Strela, shoulder fired missile.

That would be consistent with previous helicopter downings, 26 of which have been confirmed since the onset of hostilities in 2003. The number seems substantial, but considering that virtually every day in Iraq there are hundreds, if not thousands of helicopter sorties, travel by air is quite safe, and far preferable to the highways which hide so many IED's. The lingering question, however, is will these incidents remain occasional? In late November an F-16 fighter jet was providing CAS (close air support) to a small American ground force below when it crashed just north of Fallujah. Insurgents claimed to have shot the plane down with a Strela missile, something an American military spokesman denied.

Shoulder fire Strela missiles are Russian made and portable. The newer generations cannot be defeated with chaffing flares, and they are responsible for the downing of several of the worlds most sophisticated attack helicopters, the $20 million dollar Apaches. They are a helicopter pilot's worst nightmare and, presumably, American intelligence assets and special forces units spend serious time hunting down anyone purported to be in possession of them. More problematic is preventing them from entering the country. Over the last year there have been alarming news reports of Russia selling newer generation Strelas to both Syria and Iran (for details, google: Russian Strela Iran Syria). It is widely known that the scores of Russian helicopters shot down by the mujahideen during their disastrous war with Afghanistan were the direct result of America arming the Afghan muj. Is Mother Russia seeking her revenge? Whether Russia's motivation is bloodlust or economic is irrelevant. The missiles have been sold, and as the Coach would say, it is what it is.

Time will tell if these incidents remain sporadic, but any significant increase would make our mission in Iraq far more difficult and complex. Iraq's borders are vast, and the manpower to really secure them is beyond our current capabilities. The Hamilton-Baker report strongly advised the Bush administration to engage in talks with Iran and Syria, advice which has gone unheeded. Would such a dialogue result in the end of the Strela threat in Iraq? Impossible to say, but I believe if you were to acquire the anonymous opinions of the pilots of the Blackhawks that, as I type, have been raising their usual racket landing and departing here in Taji, they would say that there is only one way to find out.

Czech Yourself

by Tina Fabiano

After getting nearly run over by double decker buses in London, braving the turbulence from the windstorm that overtook Europe en route to Munich, and having my first (and presumably last) taste of goulash, I am here in Prague, alive and well.

To be as simple and accurate as possible, Prague is beautiful. Between the medieval architecture, timeless landmarks like the Astronomical Clock and Charles Bridge, and the skyline bespeckled with various castles, it's hard to not walk around with your jaw open so wide that it's practically scraping the cobblestone roads. I've spent the past few days briefly exploring sections of Prague including the Jewish Quarter, Old Town, and Wenceslas Square and intend to visit each even more. I still have no idea where anything is, but I'm guessing that will change more and more over the course of the semester.

But, let me just say something. I'll admit it: when I set out on my journey to Europe, I had some preconceived ideas about what it would be like. I thought that I'd ease into my surroundings as flawlessly as camouflage, that I'd be spending my days enjoying exotic meals and that my travel books would have all the answers. Instead, I found myself fumbling with the strange currency in my wallet, fearing the foreign cuisine, and having my carry-on and shoes checked for explosives, and all of this was before I completed going through security at Logan International Airport.

Of all the things that have affected me in my first week as a foreign student, the one that has boggled me the most is what the well-traveled call "culture shock," or adapting to foreign customs, mannerisms and traditions when living in a new country. Coming from America, it's hard to imagine a place without McDonald's, WalMart's, and Dunkin' Donuts' lining the streets, and outgoing people discussing the weather at the train station. Instead, it is rare for the Czech people to be social with strangers, and instead of Wal Mart there is a shopping mecca called Tesco which is part Wal Mart, part Market Basket, part Best Buy, and part Office Max - and the entire four story junction houses no English speaking employees. I was also warned that the shopping in Tesco can get crowded and fierce and that the elderly women of the community are particularly violent with their shopping carts. In fact, the last thing our resident coordinator said on the subject of Tesco and elderly women was, "Look out for the backs of your ankles." I was almost disappointed to find that the evening I chose to go to Tesco was uncrowded, calm, and clear of any potential achilles killer wielding a cane and shopping cart.

When I arrived in the Czech Republic, we stopped at the Pilsner Brewery for lunch where I felt brave and ordered a beef goulash and a water. I had an inkling that when the goulash came I wouldn't enjoy it, but never did I imagine I would be surprised by the water. Upon the first sip, my eyes watered and I realized that it was carbonated. Since then, every water I order has to be accompanied with the demand, "No gas, please."

Maybe my culture shock stems from the dreary, communist-era student hostel we're staying in, and that our beds are made of couch cushions, covered with one white, hole-ridden sheet. Maybe it's the traditional Czech breakfast that consists of an endless supply of cheese and stale bread. Or, maybe it's attempting to speak an unfamiliar tongue that often leaves out vowels and has 40 letters instead of 26.

While I'm positive I'll never get used to eating cheese sandwiches on stale bread for breakfast, I'm confident I'll eventually be able to do a little more than point and make absurd charade-like movements to order some pizza until my stomach adjusts to the weight of dumplings. And, I'm even more confident that as time goes on, I'll be able to bridge the language gap and have a friendly, and very basic, conversation with a native Czech speaker. It's the lack of creature comforts that send the bewildered and weary traveller into this state of culture shock and the only cure is waiting it out, or in my case, just dealing with it and enjoying the ride to immersion.

Reading Co-operative Bank donates $5,000 to Winchester Hospital Foundation

Winchester - Reading Co-operative Bank recently donated $5,000 to the Winchester Hospital Foundation. This donation represents the bank's ongoing commitment to fund the recent renovations to the Winchester Hospital Emergency Department.

Winchester Hospital's Emergency Department now features 31 treatment rooms and separate areas for adult and pediatric patients designed to ease patient flow with a "fast track" area for patients with less critical issues; an acute care section where those with more serious conditions can be treated in a more private setting; and a child-friendly pediatric area with whimsical artwork and fish murals painted on blue ceiling tiles. Other additions include three nurse stations, a trauma room, administrative space, and hospitality area for patients' family members and other visitors. An estimated 45,000 patients visit the Emergency Department each year.

"The support of Reading Co-operative Bank has been instrumental in our success in providing a state-of-the-art emergency facility to our community," said Winchester Hospital President and CEO Dale Lodge.

"Winchester Hospital's mission is to meet the medical needs of the same communities served by Reading Co-operative Bank," said Reading Co-operative Bank President and CEO Julieann M. Thurlow. "It is the appropriate use of the bank's resources to provide financial support for this new facility."

About Winchester Hospital

Friendship Lodge to hold a Blood Drive next Wednesday

WILMINGTON - On Wednesday, January 31, 2007 from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m., there will be a blood drive held at Friendship Lodge, 32 Church Street, (Route 62) Wilmington. This is just one of the opportunities for you to come forward and help members of the Merrimack Community. Yes, Wilmington is included in the Merrimack Community when you are donating blood to the American Red Cross.

It is a simple process to donate blood. The donation of blood takes a little more than an hour and includes registration, a brief medical history, and having your pulse, temperature, blood pressure, and hemoglobin checked. The actual donation only takes about 10 minutes and is relatively painless. To see what it feels like, pinch your arm just above the elbow.

What does it take? It takes the willingness to support your community and nation. To be an eligible donor, you must be 17 years or older, weigh at least 110 pounds, and be in general good health.

January is designated National Volunteer Blood Donor month.

Every two seconds someone in the United States needs blood but only 5 percent of the eligible population donates regularly. Unfortunately, blood shortages are common during the winter months due to holidays, travel, inclement weather and seasonal colds. January is a difficult month for blood centers to collect blood donations so this January make an appointment to give blood and resolve to become a regular blood donor.

If you did not donate during NECN's campaign, schedule an appointment, visit www.givelife.org or contact your local Red Cross by one of the following telephone numbers: 978-372-6871 or 978-458-6385 or 978-683-2465.

Tewksbury residents:

Tewksbury wants to thank their residents who have shown a great deal of effort in recycling.

Recycling homeowners will be sought out randomly and will be awarded a cooler on behalf of the Tewksbury Recycling Committee. Don't be alarmed, we will be leaving the cooler at your door.

Also one lucky winner each month will win a popular gift certificate. Winners will be notified and will be recognized in the Town Crier and on our website, www.tewksbury.info/recycle.

Your efforts in recycling greatly help reduce our waste stream and lower our disposal costs for Tewksbury. This, in turn will help lower your taxes!

Good luck and keep recycling!

Passport day at Tewksbury Post Office February 3rd

TWEEKSBURY- Are you planning to travel abroad?

The Tewksbury Post Office, 1751 Main St., will make it easier for you by holding a special "Passport Day" on Saturday, Feb. 3, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Postmaster Joanna M. Louf, noting the closeness of the date to Valentine's Day, said the event is being billed as "Take Your Sweetheart Away Day."

She said applications are accepted in Tewksbury Post Office Mondays to Fridays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

There are new regulations requiring a passport for all air and sea travel to and from Canada, Mexico, Central and South America, the Caribbean, and Bermuda. These new rules took effect Jan. 8, she said. Additionally, beginning Jan. 1, 2008 this requirement will extend to all land border crossings as well as air and sea travel.

Louf said minor children applying for a passport must be accompanied by both parents if they are under 14 years of age, and one parent must be present for children 14 to 17-years-old. "These special "Passport Day" Saturday hours should prove to be helpful to persons with children who need passports".

The Post Office also takes passport photos for $15, she said, making the procedure a one-stop process.

She recommended persons apply for their passport at least two months or earlier before their departure to avoid extra costs to expedite an application.

Other requirements in applying for a passport, she said, include: Evidence of citizenship, two passport photos, and current photo identification.

Passport fees can be paid by check or cash. Passports cost a total of $97 for persons 16 years of age and over; $82 for persons under age 16, and $67 for passports being renewed.

More information can be obtained by calling Tewksbury Post Office at (978) 851-6390.

To save time, passport applications can be downloaded at www.usps.com/passport to complete your passport beforehand, Louf said.

Senator Tarr backs Working Families Tax Credit Republican Policy Conference prioritizes affordability

BOSTON - Senate Assistant Minority Leader, Bruce Tarr (R-Gloucester) and the members of the Republican Policy Conference are sponsoring a comprehensive tax credit plan to make Massachusetts more affordable for middle income families. The bill is to help the Commonwealth's many residents to cope with the State's high cost of living, and is a major priority of the conference, of which Tarr is the Senate Chair.

"Too many everyday costs of living are putting pressure on the working families of our state. They need and deserve relief. Moreover, the economic future of our state depends on people being able to stay here and work here," said Senator Tarr.

The innovative bill is known as the "Working Families Tax Credit," the legislation would allow taxpayers to claim up to $20,000 in deductions on their state income tax return to offset a variety of everyday living expenses, including rent, utilities, college tuition and child care.

Under the GOP proposal, taxpayers can choose one or more deductions from a "checklist" of qualifying expenses. Deductions will range from $500 for property or casualty insurance costs on a primary residence to as much as $6,000 for mortgage expenses. Collectively, the total deduction claimed by any taxpayer can not exceed $20,000 in any given tax year.

"We tried to make this plan as broad-based as possible so that more would qualify for relief," said Senate Minority Leader Richard R. Tisei (R-Wakefield). "Depending on their personal circumstances, some taxpayers will get a small credit, while others will be able to claim the full deduction."

"Until we make Massachusetts more affordable, we will continue to see residents pulling up stakes and moving to other parts of the country," said House Minority Leader Brad Jones (R-North Reading). "The Working Families Tax Credit is a key component of our effort to turn that trend around and keep people at home in the Bay State."

Republican Senate and House members are now working together to develop new ideas that will improve the lives of Massachusetts residents through the newly created Republican Policy Conference that both Senator Tarr and Representative Loscocco (R-Holliston) chair.

The tax credit is one of several initiatives that Republicans are offering this session to try to stop the exodus of residents from Massachusetts. More than 250,000 people have left the state over the last four years, due primarily to high housing and insurance costs.

Highlights of the Working Families Tax Credit legislation include:

- an expansion of the existing rental deduction, which will increase from $3,000 to $4,500;
- the introduction of a new mortgage interest deduction for a primary residence, which will be capped at $6,000;
- the creation of a $500 deduction for property or casualty insurance costs associated with a primary residence;
- the establishment of a $2,500 utility deduction, which will allow residents to offset costly expenses such as water, sewer,

electricity, home heating oil, natural gas and propane;

an increase in the standard child care deduction, which for a single child will rise from $4,800 to $5,520, and from $9,600 to $11,040 for parents with two or more dependents; and an expanded student loan interest deduction, which will now be available not only to undergraduate students, but also graduate students pursuing an advanced degree.

The tax credit package also offers an additional benefit to parents sending a child to college. Under current tax law, when a student is enrolled in a two or four year college, parents can claim a credit equal to the amount by which the tuition payments exceed 25 percent of their adjusted gross income. The new proposal expands eligibility by allowing for the deduction of tuition costs that exceed 15 percent of adjusted gross income.

Republican legislators have been working closely with the Department of Revenue to determine the fiscal impact the tax credit proposal will have on the state.

Citizens Drug Recognition Academy begins Monday, January 29th

TEWKSBURY - Would you know what a hollowed out light bulb is used for if you found it in your daughter's room? What would you be thinking if you found an empty tampon tube and Vick's Vapor Rub in your son's drawer? Can you tell the difference between normal mood swings and drug induced symptoms in your teenager? Can you protect your kids from being dosed a drug without their knowledge?

Tewksbury CARES, the Tewksbury Board of Public Health and Tewksbury Community Services are sponsoring a unique program for parents and concerned citizens. "Citizens Drug Recognition Academy" provides the community with a comprehensive training on recognition of drugs, drug paraphernalia, eye clues and physical symptoms of drug abuse. This education series is designed for only for adults.

The 5-part course begins on Monday January 29, 2007 at 7:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. and continues each Monday evening through March 5 in the Tewksbury High School Library. (There is no program on February 19 due to school vacation.) The program is free of charge and open to adults only. Each week, a different section of drug abuse will be discussed: Plant-Based/Traditional Drugs; Prescription and Over-The-Counter Drugs; Club Drugs; Drug-Facilitated Sexual Assaults and Breaking Barriers of Communication When Talking to your Kids about Drugs. The last session will include of a panel discussion with members of the police and school departments about drug issues in Tewksbury.

The presentations are multimedia programs including slides with full color pictures, video clips of real kids talking about their drug experiences and hands-on paraphernalia. The purpose of the training is to educate parents to recognize the signs of drug abuse early. Early recognition leads to early intervention, which can prevent addiction. Young people become addicted much more quickly than adults so early intervention is critical. "Parents have more power than they may realize to prevent drug abuse and drug related assaults. This program will empower parents with the knowledge they need to protect their children, no matter how old they are," says Marilyn Belmonte, Burlington Drug & Alcohol Task Force co-chairperson and certified trainer of drug recognition. "The presentations will include how to talk to our kids about drugs, how to reduce the risk of prescription drug abuse and resources for parents."

Register for the program is through Tewksbury Community Services. Please call 978 640-7831 or email basteric@tewksbury.k12.ma.us. Please include your name, address, age and telephone number on any email. For more information go to www.tewksburycares.org <<http://www.tewksburycares.org>>

A trip to the Mohegan Sun is planned for Tuesday, February 13th. Tickets are now available at $20 per person.

On Sunday, February 25th, Seniors will travel to the Amesbury Playhouse for lunch and a matinee performance of "Oklahoma". The cost of this trip is $37 per person.

During the winter months of January and February it is customary not to hold many day trips or special events. Surprisingly, to date, we have had extremely good weather for a New England winter. All regularly scheduled classes and activities continue during these months. However, if and when winter ever comes, Seniors are reminded that the rule of thumb is: When school is cancelled so too are Senior Center classes and or activities. If in doubt about whether or not a class is being held, one should call the Senior Center at 978-640-4480 or 978-640-4482 before venturing out in bad weather.

The Red Hat Carnation Belles Chapter #25668 will be holding its Third Anniversary Dinner on Saturday, February 10th. Details and tickets for this event will be available today and noted in next week's column.

Ball In The House is a tour de force of vocal sound blending contemporary sounds and rhythms into original material that must be heard and seen to be believed. The band members describe themselves as a "mouth band," but audience members will walk away wondering how all of those sounds and beats could have been made solely by human vocal cords.

The Boston Globe says of the group, "Ball in the House has everything you would expect to find in a successful pop/rock band...the one thing it doesn't have is instruments."

"People can't believe that there are no instruments being used," said Townwide Enrichment Coordinator Barbara Bosco. "Their sound is more like 'rock-a-pella,' it's very contemporary."

All week leading up to the big February 1st evening concert, Ball In The House will be touring the Wilmington Schools, grades 1 through 8, as the featured town-wide music series. Their school program will include a taste of their original works as well as classic cover songs but will also give the students an introduction to a capella singing - what it is and how it works. The band will speak to students about harmony, rhythm, various voice parts, and how to put it all together into song.

Enrichment programs provide exposure to various forms of art and expression that students might not otherwise be aware of. But Wilmington's enrichment programs also provide parents with conversation starters at the dinner table. A notice goes home to parents each time an enrichment program takes place. The notice begins with the sentence, "Ask me about..." and goes on to describe the program that their child attended.

"Enrichment is all about communication," said Bosco. "How often does your child say, 'Nothing,' when you ask them what they learned at school that day. They get excited about the enrichment programs. They provide another opportunity to communicate with your child."

Hearing your child describe an exciting enrichment program is great, but what could be better than experiencing such a program right alongside your child? The Ball In The House concert on February 1st provides just such an opportunity.

Get your tickets quickly before they sell out.

Mills Corp sold

assets under management.

Katherine Vyse, spokesperson for Brookfield, stated that Brookfield has a history with malls and other retail holdings, beginning with three mall complexes in Brazil where the company began a century ago. Brookfield also owns fifty percent of a company called Brookfield Properties that develops large office complexes and mixed-use properties, often with award winning retail components.

The Mills, which currently has thirty-eight properties, will become part of a newly formed subsidiary of Brookfield. The company will keep The Mills name, keeping the brand name associated with mall development in North America, an area of property development that Brookfield is looking to expand into.

"It's premature to comment on operational specifics or individual properties," stated Vyse, but adding, "We don't currently have a retail platform in North America and see this as an attractive opportunity to build on an asset management strategy and establish a platform for growth."

That asset management strategy includes investing in "high quality, long life assets that generate sustainable cash flows and have barriers to entry." Brookfield looks for property, hydroelectric power plants and transmission assets to include in its portfolio.

Town Manager David Cressman has yet to receive official notification of the agreement between Brookfield and The Mills and what implications, if any, it may have for the Tewksbury Mills project.

"We'll see what happens with the vote of the corporation to accept the offer," said Cressman. "Now we have a little more certainty that the corporation will exist, rather than just headed toward bankruptcy and liquidation."

Tewksbury Mills, the proposed 750,000 square foot shopping and entertainment complex for land owned by the Perkins Trust in South Tewksbury, also includes plans for hotels on the Wilmington portion of the parcel. David Wahr, a regional consultant to Mills Corp, was unavailable for comment.

involve any number of things depending on the situation and the authority given to us by the town," Gilbert explained. "The town needs to ask during town meeting for the Redevelopment Authority to become involved in a project."

He elaborated, "We sort of act as the planning manager with the initial project. We submit plans to the Board of Selectman for approval - including how much a project is going to cost and how long it's expected to take. We look at things like how the street lights are going to be configured and why. Once we submit the plan to the selectmen, and they approve it, the plan goes to the Highway Department for action."

Gilbert recalled the last project the Authority was involved with.

"Our last project was about five years ago, and it was the Route 38 project."

Gilbert said, "It involved the area from Middlesex Avenue to Market Basket. We had to figure out how the area was going to be laid out. It was our responsibility to keep businesses on both sides of the road happy. Market Basket wanted more exits to access Route 38 from their parking lot. We had to work with them and the Highway Department to make it work. The main thing is to keep everyone happy."

Citing another past project, Gilbert said, "We were also involved with the Jewel Drive project several years ago. It involved the reorganization of land available in the Jewel Drive area off of Eames Street. We were empowered by town meeting to bring it from several land owners to one land owner."

Sid Kaizer, who served as Treasurer of the Redevelopment Authority for over twenty-two years, also recalled the Jewel Drive project. "Some parcels of land were postage stamp sized lots, and you couldn't even build on them."

He described how the town took the land by eminent domain and then went to the state to get funding. Kaizer explained, "We set up bank books and a way to keep track of all of it. We had meetings and assembled all the small lots together and paid the previous owners out. Most of them were willing to settle the issue."

Once the land was assembled, the town "started advertising in the trade papers that land was available for industry," stated

Kaizer.

In describing the traits of an ideal nominee, Gilbert said, "This position requires someone to be observant. We need someone who likes to pay attention to details, and can make sure that the things we try to do are covered, fit the task and keep everyone happy."

The ability to read plans, form judgments and compromise when needed is also beneficial.

Nomination papers are currently available. To appear on the ballot, candidates must return papers, with the signatures of at least fifty registered Wilmington voters, to the Town Clerk's office at Town Hall by March 9th.

Pursuit ends in crash had been stolen out of Lawrence earlier in the day. The Honda pulled out of the parking lot and onto Lowell Street, heading in the direction of Interstate 93. Palmer followed the vehicle onto I-93 north while other units were called for back up. Officer Matthew Stavro was approaching I-93 on Concord Street and was about to converge with Palmer, so Palmer turned on his emergency lights and siren. Instead of pulling over, however, the Honda accelerated up to speeds exceeding but traffic made it impossible. The Honda was able to exit at Route 125 and made a left off the ramp heading toward the North Intermediate School. Palmer followed directly behind the suspect's vehicle and Stavro was directly behind Palmer. State Trooper Gerhardt, who was working a detail on Ballardvale Street, joined in the pursuit. The Honda, which was traveling at excessive speeds, made it through the hairpin turn in front of the North Intermediate School, but then stopped short as the suspects saw two addi-ting the Honda by swerving to the right. Stavro, who was following directly behind Palmer, was not able to swerve or stop in time and rear-ended the Honda. Palmer's maneuver put him within a couple of feet of the passenger side door of the Honda. Palmer got out of his cruiser and drew his firearm as the passenger attempted to exit the vehicle. The suspect complied with Palmer's order to lie down on the ground and he was handcuffed by Lt. Joseph Desmond and Officer Ronald Alpers.

school acted quickly and got all of the children back into the school. "The people at the North Intermediate did a great job securing the students in that situation," said Wilmington Deputy Police Chief Robert Richter. "They didn't know what was going on - and the officers were not in a position to safely stop and explain. (The staff) did exactly the right thing." Inside the stolen Honda were a number of items, including a house safe, a flat-screen television, jewelry, and several other pieces of property. Police later confirmed that the property was stolen from a house in Lowell that had been burglarized earlier in the day.

The operator of the Honda exited the vehicle and fled on foot toward the homes across the street from the school. Stavro and Officer Richard DiPerri pursued him behind a residence, and Gerhardt made the tackle as he was coming back around the front side. Stavro was transported by Tewksbury ambulance (Wilmington's ambulance was out on another call) to Saints Memorial Medical Center in Lowell for injuries sustained in the crash. He was released later that night. The scene played out at approximately 2:30 p.m. as buses were pulling into the North Intermediate School and children were being released. Cimaglia recently discovered that Continental Resources does not even use that particular type of box in its business - the company orders those boxes solely to benefit Local Heroes. The volunteers like to make the experience as personal as possible for the recipients, and it is not unusual for notes of encouragement and goodwill to be penned on the inside flaps of the box-tops before they're sealed tight. It takes approximately two weeks for each box to make it to its final destination, but the unrelenting pace established by the Local Heroes team ensures that our troops are receiving a steady stream of packages. Local Heroes ended up with more than enough supplies to reach the 3,000 mark, and, in fact, shipped out box number 3,008 last Wednesday. The group has no intention of slowing down - another 25 boxes or so will be shipped again by the time this edition of the Town Crier comes off the press. As long as this country's sons and daughters are serving in harm's way, Local Heroes will continue to meet every Wednesday evening downstairs at the Knights of Columbus Hall, located at 27 School Street Extension (directly behind St. Thomas's Church) in Wilmington. Everyone, and anyone, is welcome to stop in. Monetary donations to Local Heroes are accepted through an account with Citizens Bank in Wilmington Plaza, or by mailing to Local Heroes, P.O. Local tandem deliver on the court

Wilmington's Kent and Tewksbury's O'Toole have AP off to 9-0 start

By DAN IGO

Sports Correspondent

Jimmy O'Toole and Timmy Kent chose to attend Austin Prep because of academics, not basketball. After leading the team to a 9-0 start, all fans care about is the two of them staying on the court as much as possible.

O'Toole and Kent are the team's starting guards, captains and leading scorers. O'Toole, who came to Austin Prep via Tewksbury, leads the Catholic Central Small School League in points per game. Kent, a Wilmington resident, is second in the league in points per game and second in rebounds. The team's early success has somewhat caught Kent by surprise.

"I didn't expect being undefeated so far into the year," he said. "We had three starters coming back so I knew we'd be good. I didn't expect us to be this good."

O'Toole is also surprised by the team's undefeated streak. He said it's a welcome change from what Austin Prep basketball was known for.

"The team doesn't exactly have the best reputation," he said. "It's good not being the underdogs this year."

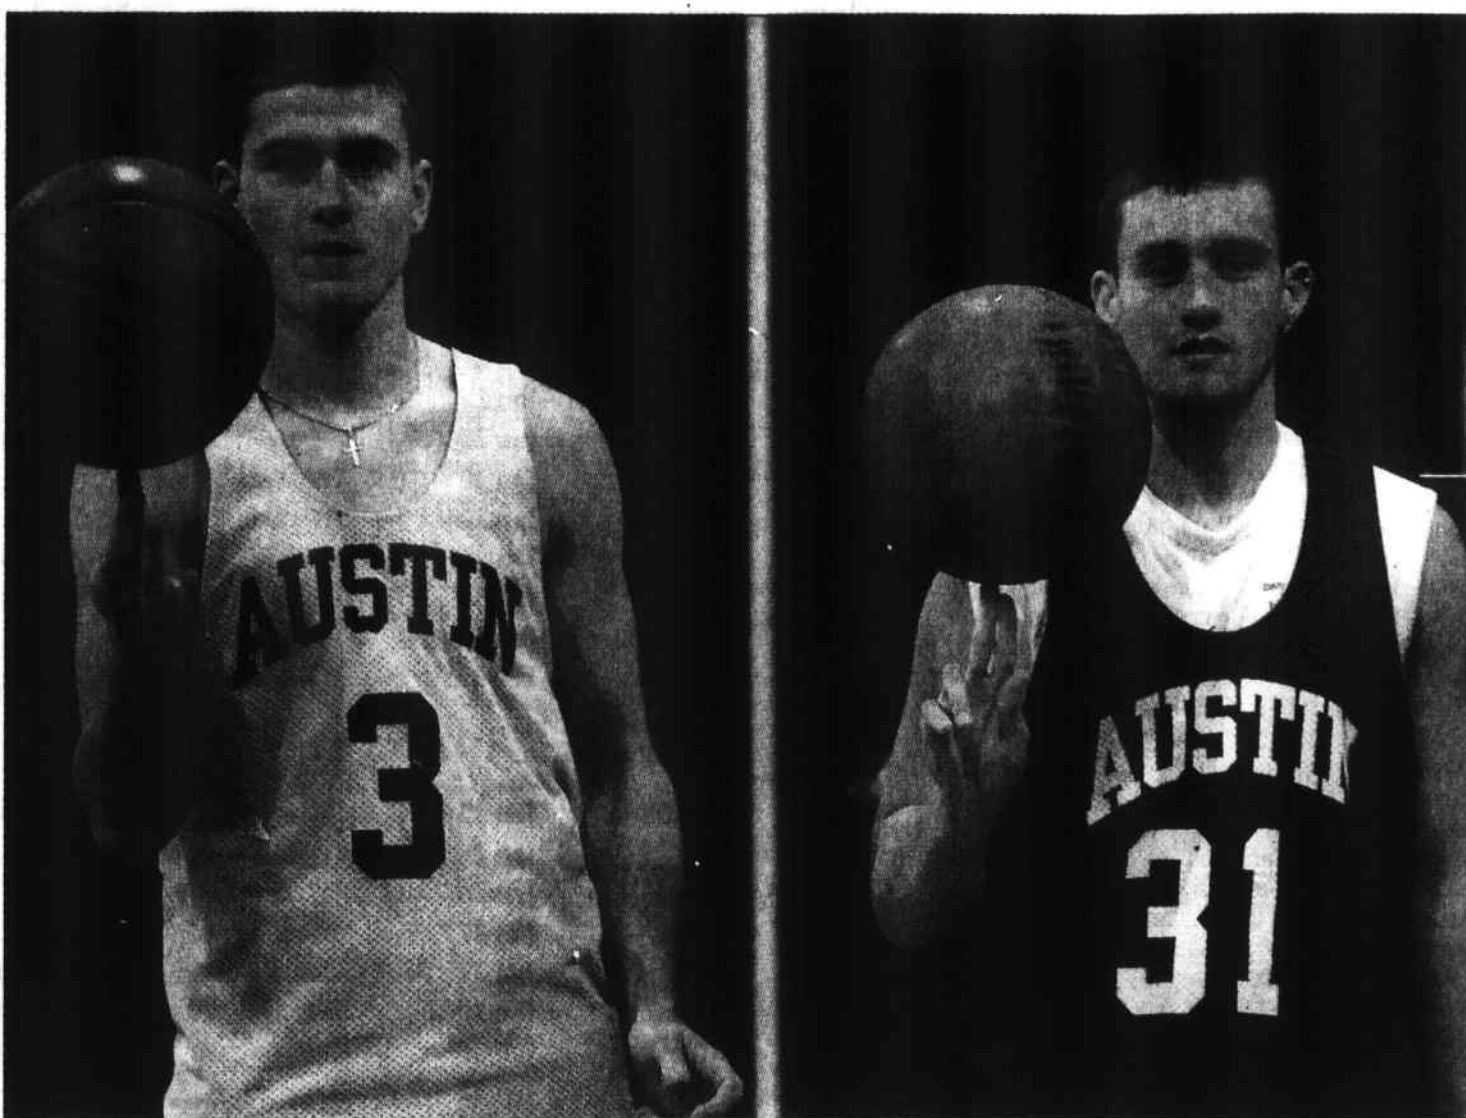

Last year Austin Prep made it all the way to the Division IV state semi-finals, where they lost to Ipswich in a 58-55 heart-breaker. The team ended the year with a 13-8 record.

Head coach Lorne Lucas is quite familiar with both players. O'Toole and Kent have logged major minutes since their freshman year. Now seniors, Lucas says that they lead the team in their own way. "They are both different kids," Lucas said. "Jimmy doesn't say a heck of a lot. He's more of the leader on the floor. He's very knowledgeable and more a quiet leader."

"Timmy is much more outgoing. He lets people know when things aren't going so well. He has high expectations not only for himself, but for all of his teammates out there. I think it's great. I've always respected him for that."

Kent's decision to go to Austin Prep was actually encouraged by his parents, who were drawn to the school's academic reputation. He said the school definitely has helped him in the grade department. O'Toole also decided to go to Austin Prep because of academics. He enrolled in sixth grade and hasn't looked back since.

"When I started at Austin they didn't even have a basketball court," he said. "I definitely didn't come here because of basketball."

O'Toole and Kent have been playing with and against each other since the fifth grade. The two battled on opposing travel teams in middle school and then played for the same AAU team. Being in the same backcourt in high school was a natural transition.

"I know his game better than he does," O'Toole said of Kent. "We are very familiar with each other. I always know where he is on the court."

Both players know how to fill up a box score. Two weeks ago against Matignon, O'Toole had 25 points to go along with 7 assists and 5 steals. Kent had 16 points, 11 rebounds and 6 assists. One week earlier against Marian, Kent had 26 points and 10 rebounds while O'Toole had 17 points and 10 assists. Lucas says that his two captains are the unequivocal leaders of the Cougars.

"They're the heart and soul of the team," he said. "Both do so much on the floor. Timmy with his rebounding, passing and scoring is such unique player.

We ask him to do so much.

"Jimmy can score and pass so well. There are games where he just takes over offensively. He had a game in Stoneham where the (opposing) crowd was cheering for him because he had hit such a hot streak. Every time he touched the ball they clapped."

O'Toole scored 29 points that game. Excluding a game against an inferior Lowell Catholic team when he didn't see much floor time, O'Toole has put up two 29-point games, one 25-point game, one 27-point game, a 20-point game and a 17-point game.

Kent, meanwhile, has scored in double digits in five of his team's seven games. He says he brings a lot more to the team than just putting the ball in the hoop.

"Experience is one thing I bring to the table," he said. "Other players tend to be nervous late in the game. I'm a lot calmer with the ball and (have) good court vision. I know when to shoot and when not to shoot."

O'Toole is the main scorer on the team, but does many other things well on the court. He is a strong passer and can also rebound when the team needs it. He said his basketball smarts is what separates him from the pack.

"I've been playing the game for so long I can see the court a lot better than most players," he said.

Both the coach and his two stars are happy about the turnaround Austin Prep basketball has had the past four years. Lucas said his team has a long way to go this year if it wants to contend for a league title, but he is happy where they are at this point in the season.

"We're going to have to play very good basketball in the league if we want a title," he said. "The kids know it and it's very important for them. (O'Toole's and Kent's) first year was the first year the team actually started to contend. The program is at the point where they're looking to turn the corner. They want to do at least as well as last year, if not better."

With both O'Toole and Kent being seniors, both are in the process of applying to college. Kent says that he would like to play basketball for a Division II or Division III school, while O'Toole is unsure of whether he'd want to play.

Vitale getting closer to reaching program history

For three plus years, fans have had the joy of watching Wilmington High senior center Ashley Vitale as a four-year starter on the girls basketball team.

And perhaps this week, she'll give the fans something more to cheer about.

After scoring nine points in the team's win at home on Monday night, Vitale now has scored 981 career points, needing just 19 more points to become the first female basketball player ever in the history of the school to reach the 1,000 point plateau.

Only three male players have reached the milestone, including Eric Swiezynski, who did it while on the road at Hamilton-Wenham back in the 2001 season.

This season, Vitale has had two games of 20 or more points with 20 in the team's season opening loss to Masconomet, and 24 in the team's dramatic buzzer beating win over Arlington Catholic. She also scored 18 against Tewksbury, while she has scored in double figures in 8 of the team's 11 games.

A two-time Cape Ann League All-Conference player, Vitale had a chance to reach the 1,000 point milestone on Wednesday night as the Wildcats took on Salem High in a nonleague game played at home while this paper was hitting the local stores.

If she does not get it on Wednesday, the team is on the road on Friday at Manchester-Essex and then Tuesday against Pentucket, with the latter two games starting at 6:30 pm.

Ten and counting for girls hockey

By JAMIE POTE

Needing a victory to assure themselves of at least a tie for the Cape North League Championship, the Wilmington High girls hockey team played exceptional in the first two periods, before allowing Marblehead to climb back into the game in the third period. But a strong Wildcat defense held the Magicians off down the stretch and Wilmington came away with a hard earned 5-4 thrilling victory on the Ristuccia Exposition Center's ice.

Besides the victory, Wilmington earned its fourth straight state tournament appearance with its 10-1 record, and now need one win over Beverly or Masconomet to earn the program's third league title in the past four seasons.

"This game was huge," said coach Joe McMahon. "We told the girls what was on the line. They didn't want to give Marblehead a chance to tie us for first place. The girls want the league title all to themselves. They went out, did what they had to do and played a flawless first period."

Wilmington stormed out to a 3-0 lead in the first period before Marblehead came back and made it a 4-2 game at the break. Marie Pescatore scored two first period goals, while Maria Tucker had a nice wrap-around tally, and Sara Alonardo added the other score.

"The first period was flawless," said McMahon. "The passing in the neutral zone was

Wildcat boys hoop team feasts on sloppy seconds

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

The Wilmington High School boys basketball team picked up two sloppy wins this past week, defeating Hamilton-Wenham, 57-47, on Friday night and continuing its road trip to Triton Regional on Monday and coming away with a 72-51 victory.

With the two wins, the Wildcats are now 9-2 overall, and 6-1 in the Cape Ann League currently tied for first place with Masconomet and North Andover (one less win) with one league loss each.

Friday's win seemed to be a lesson for both the coaching staff and the players.

"I can't relax," said coach Jim McCune after the win. "This is a team that has to be pushed daily. We have to maintain that constant work ethic and intensity. We as coaches have to have that so it transforms into the kids. I've been pretty laid back the last couple of games and I think that showed with tonight's game. I'm going to take responsibility for this because we did not play well at all."

Wilmington led by four points at halftime against a Hamilton-Wenham team that came into the game with a 1-9 record. The game remained tight throughout the entire second half, before Wilmington got some breathing room really late.

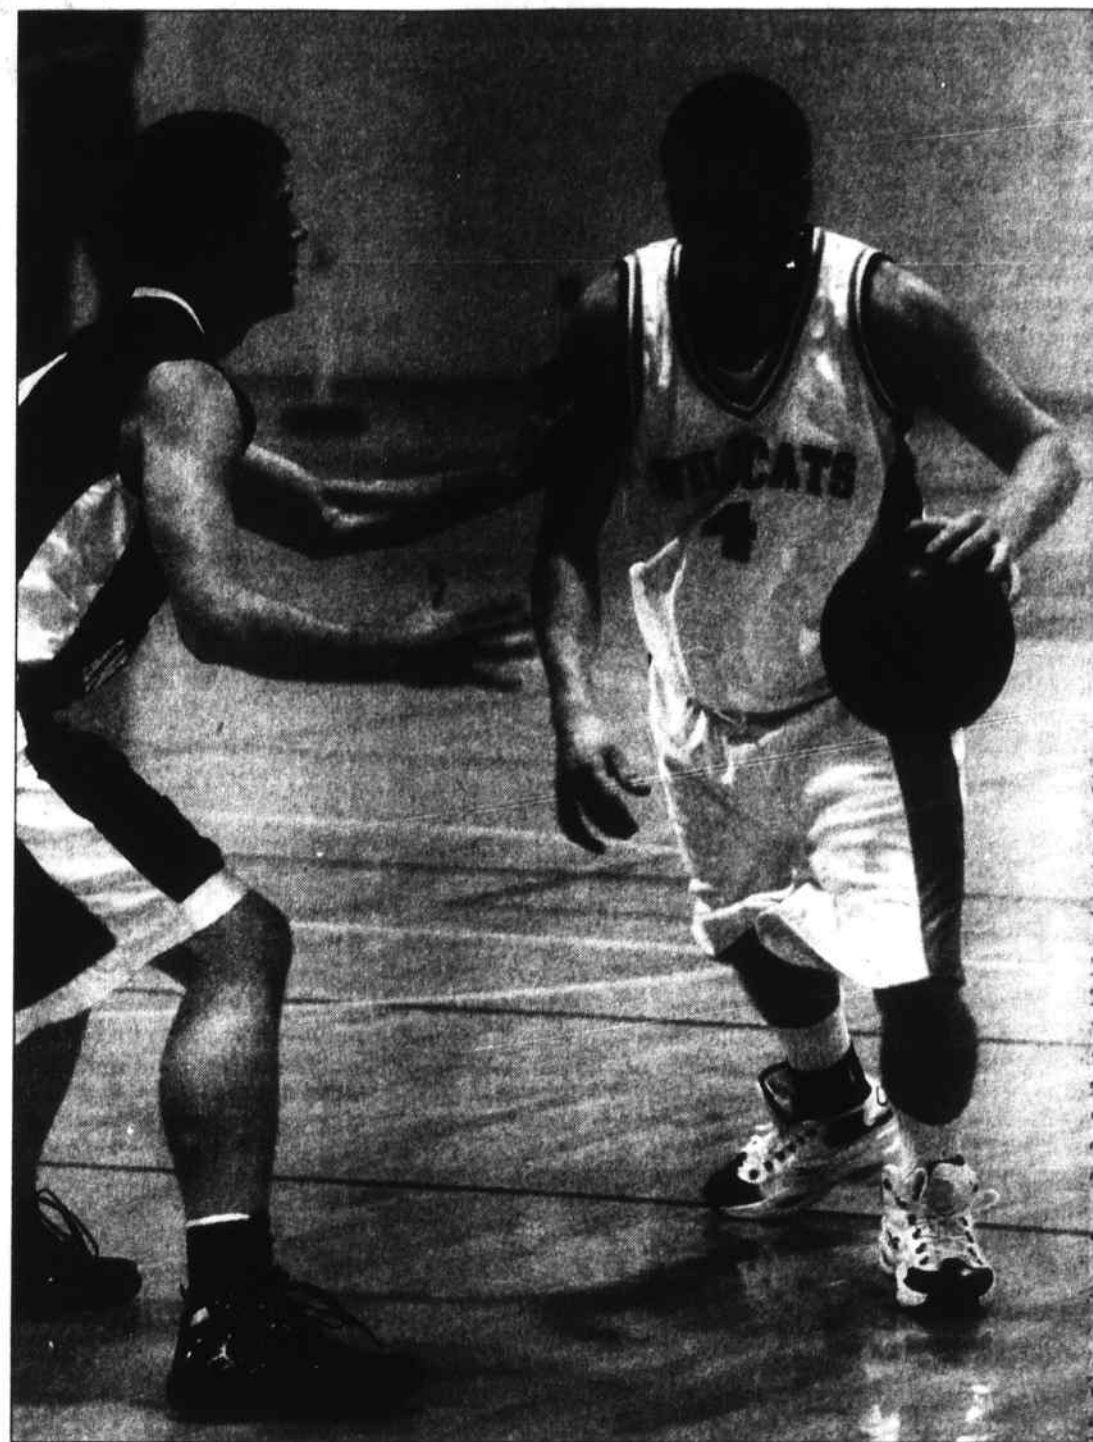

"We have to get back to the things that we have been doing," said McCune. "We didn't use our half court offense at all and I think tonight was just a total lack of focus from everybody. We're very fortunate to come out of here with a win. We're 8-2 and I'm absolutely thrilled with that but tonight I think we all learned a lesson. I've learned that I can not let up on these kids, and I think the kids have learned that they need to listen to what the coaches tell them and have to come ready to play every night."

Wilmington had four players finish in double figures with Matt Bibeau leading the way with 14, followed by Greg Stewart with 13 and Zach Fahey and John Olivere with 11 each.

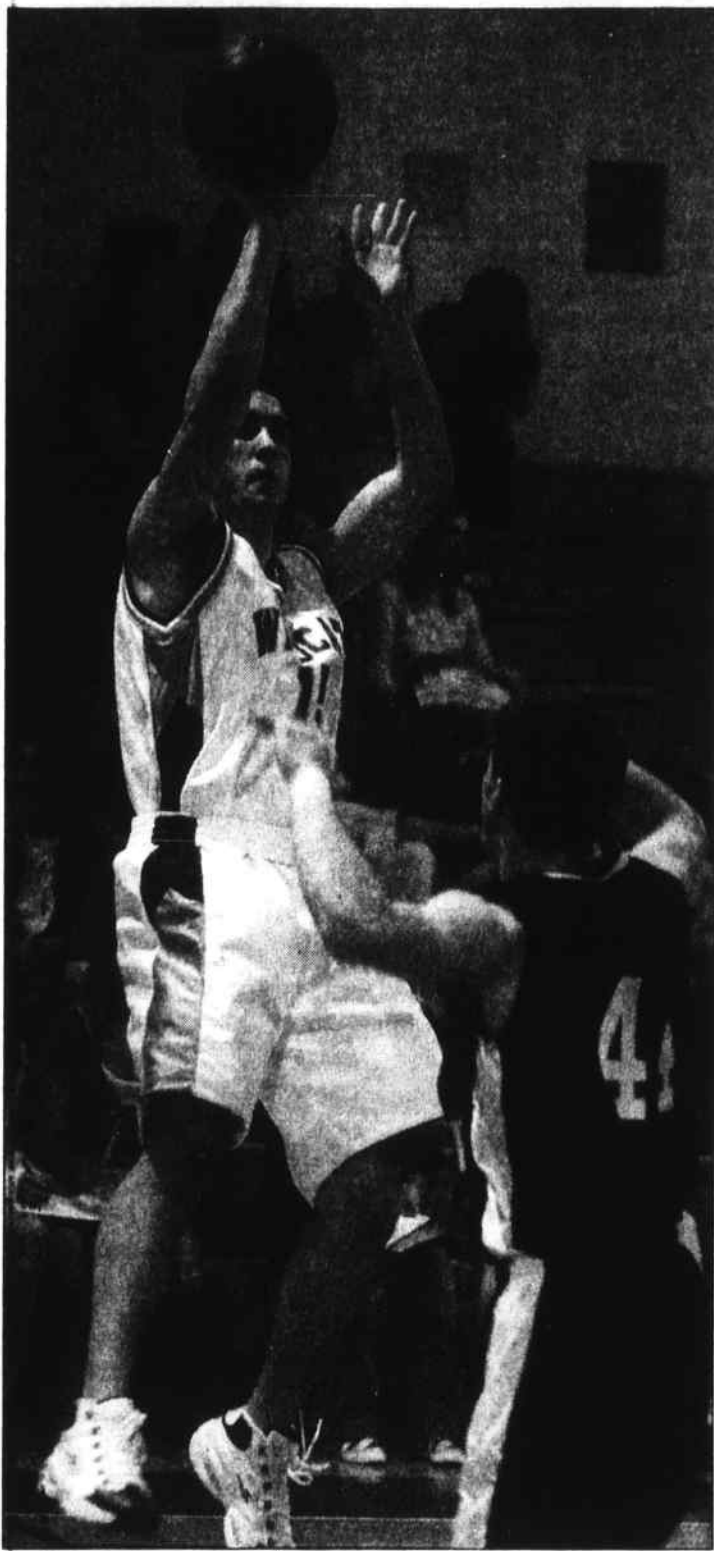

On Monday night, Wilmington played better than it did on Friday but ran into foul trouble early on.

"Thankfully we got great production for our second group," said McCune. "The group of Danny Patterson, Matt Brooks, Evan Borseti, Kyle Moon and Mike Thomas were outstanding coming off the bench in the first half and helping us have a 14-point lead at halftime."

With Stewart, Olivere and Bibeau all in foul trouble early, McCune went to the reserves and they came through combining for 14 points.

"Those kids played quite a bit in the first half and they did a great job," said McCune. "They moved the ball, the scoring was spread out and they all played real good defense."

On the night, Fahey led the way with 22 points, but sophomore Craig Melillo was also instrumental as he finished with 11 points with seven coming in a 90 second span.

"It was nice to see Craig have success because he's been struggling a little bit with his shot," said McCune. "But we have two sophomore point guards and you wouldn't know it by watching Craig and Mike Manganelli play. They have both played very well for us thus far."

Still with the good production at point guard and the valuable minutes off the bench, McCune said there's still more cleaning up to do.

"(Monday) we ran into foul trouble," he said. "We didn't want to use our quickness or our feet. They took 16 foul shots in the first half and luckily they went 9-for-16 at the line. A lot of the fouls were careless. We weren't using our feet and we were reaching and hacking all night."

Wilmington's Bridget Griffin takes the puck to her backhand during a recent girls hockey game played at the Ristuccia Exposition Center. Currently the Wildcats are 10-1, in first place, while already have qualified for the state tournament. (JoeBrownphotos.com) really good today, especially in that first period. They kept their heads up and the girls played really smart, disciplined hockey. These girls deserve a lot of credit for what they have done, and so do the coaches. We have three coaches on the ice with us every morning and the girls are listening. The girls really wanted this game and they came to this rink really wanting to win."

Marblehead had a great scoring bid to start the second period, but Wildcat freshman goalie Amelia Woodbury (20 saves) was up to the challenge making a nice right pad save.

Shortly thereafter, Wilmington got back on the scoreboard thanks to hard work in its own end. Defenseman Bridget Griffin won a 50-50 battle in the right corner, and sent the puck behind the net to the left wing boards. The puck ended up on the stick of Maria Tucker, who came in on a 2-on-1 and sent a beautiful pass to her right to Jessica Sciolli, whose wrist shot beat the Marblehead goalie making it a 5-2 game.

That goal was also Sciolli's 100th in her brilliant career here at WHS.

Marblehead added a goal with 5:46 left in the second period and then cut it down to 5-4 with a tally with 3:50 to go in the game. But immediately after that goal, Woodbury made a terrific save off a hard shot from a face-off, and then Tucker had several nice end-to-end rushes killing time off the clock and the Wildcats held on for the win.

"We did let them back in it," said McMahon. "A couple of shots went their way but you know what that happened the last time we played them. They scored a goal on a breakaway in the last minute of the game and won 3-2. Whenever these two teams get together it's great hockey. This game here is exactly what the (Wilmington) coaches were looking for all season long."

McMahon was thrilled with the way his defensemen have been playing and said they all stepped up in this game.

"On defense Bridget Griffin has really well played," said McMahon. "Alicia Nazzaro, I've never seen a girl hold the blue line like she does. And Colleen Magee has been thrown in the mix and she's also been playing very well."

The coach also spoke highly of two of his top playmakers.

"Maria Pescatore has played excellent hockey," he said. "The last four or five games she has continued to step up another level on the ice. And Maria Tucker has been terrific all season long."

Last Wednesday night, the girls defeated Gloucester, 5-3. Sciolli had a huge night as McMahon said "she absolutely dominated the game" with three goals and one assist. Alonardo and Pescatore had the other goals, while, Tucker had two assists, and goaltender Amelia Woodbury also had an assist, coming on Sciolli's last goal with under two minutes to go in the game.

For the season, Sciolli leads the team with 22 goals and 13 assists, while, Tucker has 14 goals and 14 assists.

Wilmington is back in action with a home game on Saturday afternoon against Beverly beginning at 2:30 pm. A win will give the Wildcats the league championship.

Boys team puts on the breaks

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

PEABODY - Trailing by a goal with eight minutes left, it was thought or presumed that perhaps the Wildcats would put their play in a higher gear. But instead they seemed to have shifted to neutral or reverse for that matter as Lynnfield scored three goals during that span to come away with a 6-2 Cape Ann League victory on Saturday afternoon.

With the loss, the Wildcats are now 3-6-2 overall at the halfway point of the season.

"It was a lackluster effort by us," said coach Steve Scanlon. "It was a disappointing performance. With the time we had off (11 days), where we're at and what's at stake and coming off some real good practices, I thought we'd come out with guns blazing but we didn't."

Wilmington took a 1-0 lead as junior Eric Siegel scored a short handed goal after taking the puck through the neutral zone and around a defenseman before finding the back of the net.

The 'Cats missed out on a golden chance to score and that transpired into a Lynnfield break as they went down the length of the ice to tie the game up at one.

Wilmington was vastly outplayed in the second period, including being outshot 14-1. "(Goalkeeper) Michael (Cabral) made some big saves in the second period and he was the reason why we were in striking distance for as long as we were," said Scanlon, about the junior who stopped 28 shots. "He played a great game and really kept us in it."

Lynnfield added the game's next two goals before Ernie Mello scored to make it 3-2 with assists going to Shane Foley and Michael Enwright. But then, Lynnfield totally dominated the rest of the game, scoring three goals.

"When we made it 3-2, I thought OK it's anyone's game," said Scanlon. "But it was like switching a light - we just stopped playing. They got three goals, all by the same kid and on one of them he had three whacks at the puck in front of the net and went completely untouched. There was no physical play by us. We weren't physical forechecking and we weren't physical in our defensive end."

With the second half of the season now on the horizon, Scanlon knows the talent is there, but would like to see a sense of urgency before it's too late and the team misses out on the state tournament for the second time in three years, after making it 11 straight before that.

"We wait until the other team takes the game away from us," said Scanlon. "If you wanna win, you have to go get 'em. We could go 6-3-2 the rest of the way and qualify for the state tournament) but before you know it the season could be slipping away. Pretty soon you could find yourself in a situation where you have to beat teams and you're the heavy underdog. It's going to take a big turnaround for us."

Wilmington faced Amesbury on Wednesday night at home while this paper hit the local stores. Earlier this season, the 'Cats blanked the Indians, 4-0.

"They haven't won a game yet," said Scanlon. "But we didn't cement that game until we scored a couple of late goals. I'm always leary of teams that go into games without a win. One thing about Amesbury kids is they always hustle and they always are physical."

On Saturday night, Wilmington takes on Newburyport at the Graf Arena beginning at 7:00 pm.

Wilmington High's Sean Fay deaked out the Pentucket goalie several weeks back for his first varsity goal as a member of the boys hockey team. Currently the Wildcats are 3-6-2 at the midpoint of the season. (JoeBrownphotos.com)

Lady Cats pull out bag of tricks once again

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

You would think that if you go 7:18 without a field goal that you would lose. And you'd think that without your top player and top scorer who fouled out with 3:25 to go in a one-point game, that the chances of coming through with a win became that much tougher.

But then again it's the Wilmington High School girls basketball team that we're talking about.

Once again the girls found a way to win with its backs against the wall. Coming out flat and then watching many shots bounce off the rim, the 'Cats rallied from an eight-point second half deficit to beat a pretty decent Triton team, 46-43, in front of the home crowd on Monday night.

"We were getting good shots but they just weren't falling in," said Wildcat coach Jay Keane. "We knew eventually the shots would go in and we would go on a nice run. But again different people are stepping up. Lauren Nasiff made a couple of real big shots. This is a nice win - they beat us last year."

With the win, the 'Cats have now won 11 games in a row after losing its opener. Wilmington stands atop of the Cape Ann League standings with a 6-0 record along with Pentucket, who the team faces this Tuesday, with Masconomet right behind them at 5-1 in league play.

Wilmington led by three at halftime and went the first 7:18 without a field goal until Lauren Nasiff nailed a jump shot. Triton then called an ill-advised time-out with a six-point lead and 8:42 to go. That gave Wilmington a second life as the 'Cats responded with a 7-0 run, before the teams exchanged a series of leads over the next few minutes.

After Stephanie Sauve converted on two free throws, Brianne Bozzella stepped up with a pivotal three-point from the right wing, giving Wilmington a three-point lead with 2:58 to go. Triton scored the game's next three points to tie it back up, but Alyssa Brown drove hard to the basket and converted on a bucket, before Bozzella sealed the deal with a key defensive rebound and then a free throw with 1.9 seconds left to ice the victory.

"That was huge but she was due," said Keane. "We were getting good looks to the basket and even had some missed lay-ups, but we were able to get a few big baskets when we needed them."

Sauve led the way with 14 points, with Bozzella finishing with nine. Vitale also added nine points and nine rebounds, while the team saw solid bench play from Nasiff, Amy Fahey, and Kristen Browne, who combined for three field goals.

On Friday night, Wilmington defeated Hamilton-Venham, 66-40. Sauve and Vitale finished in double figures with 16 and 10 points, respectively, while the team received solid production again off the bench as Fahey, Katie Sullivan and Brittany Winchell combined for 18 of the team's points.

On Wednesday night, Wilmington took on Salem in the second game of a non-league series. Earlier the 'cats defeated the Witches, 63-43. On Friday night, the 'Cats travel to face a 1-9 Manchester-Essex squad, before the big game on Tuesday again on the road against Pentucket, who is coming off a big win against Masconomet last week.

Wilmington High senior Brianne Bozzella takes a hard fall on the parquet floor going after a loose ball during Monday night's girls basketball team's come from behind win over Triton.

Wrestlers finish 2-2 on the week

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

The Wilmington High wrestling team went 2-2 this past week putting the team's overall record to 7-7 on the season. Last Thursday the 'Cats demolished Northbridge, 59-3, in a nonleague game, before going 1-2 in a tri-meet on Saturday. Wilmington defeated Pentucket Regional, 41-25, before falling to Quabbin Regional, 36-28, and Winchester, 65-9.

In the win over Northbridge, Gott Saenchandi (112), Alex Solon (135), Ken Adams (140), John Tranfaglia (145), Dillon Halliday (152), Colin Wilson (160), Kirk Wayshville (171), Kenny Joyce (215) and Matt Sullivan (285) all won on pins. Steve Sughrue won a 16-0 tech fall decision over Alex Labonte at 103 for the final win of the night.

Sub-Varsity Round-Up JV Hockey team off to a flying start

By LOUIE CIMAGLIA
Sports Correspondent

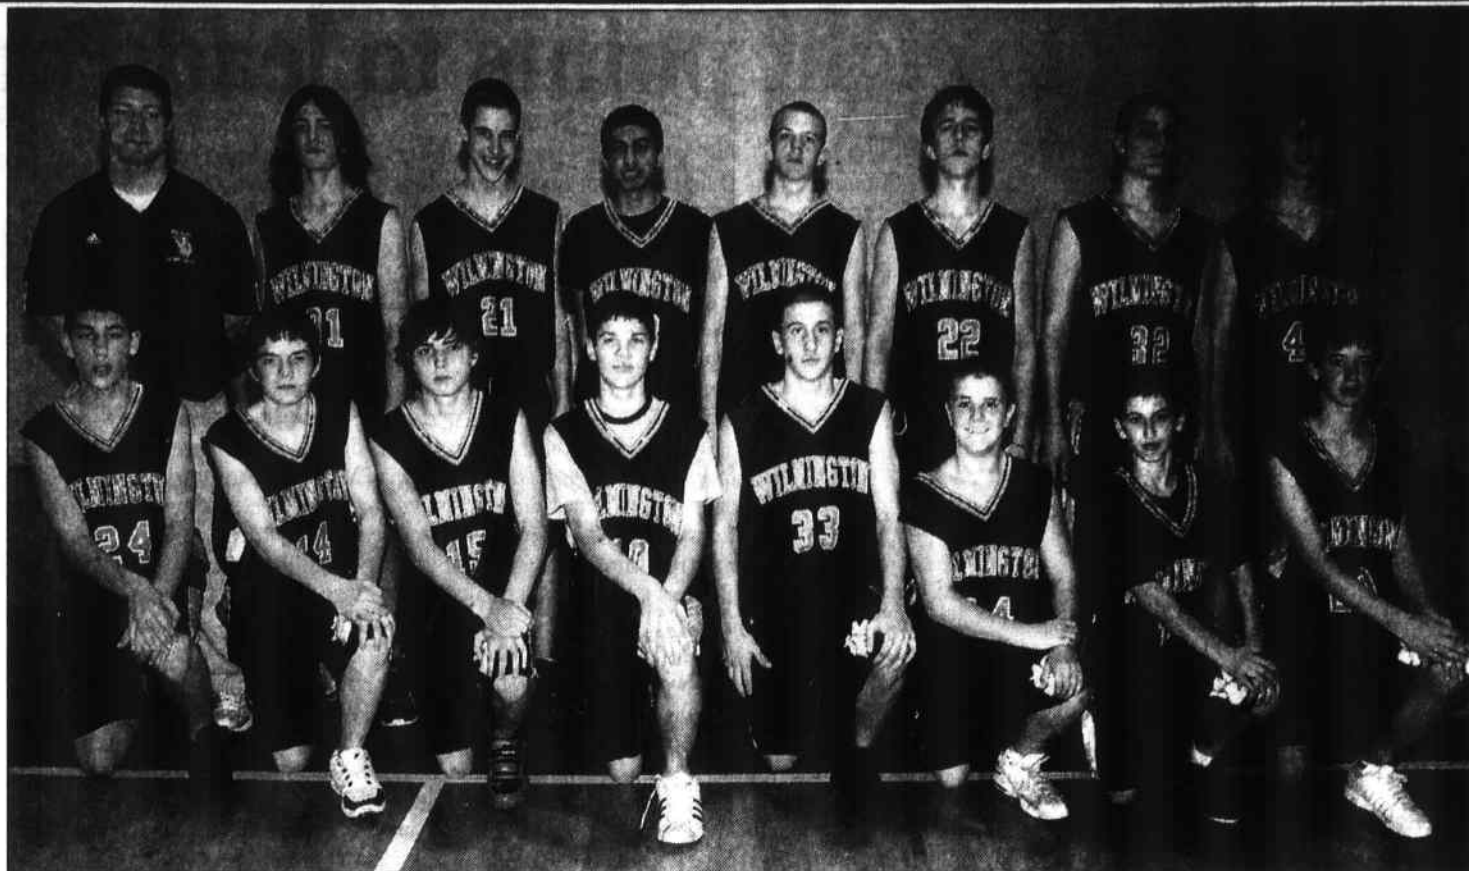

Through eleven games, the Wilmington High JV ice hockey team has done very well so far, compiling a 6-2-3 record. It's been an up and down ride thus far.

"The first week of the season we lost an early lead and ended up in a 5-5 tie with North Reading. Later in the week we went to Methuen and played very well in a 7-1 win," said Bruce.

It has been tough sometimes for all the phases of the Wildcats' game to be on at the same time.

"(The following week) we went to Masco and played a great defensive game and came away with a 0-0 draw," said Bruce. "We followed that game with another good defensive game but we didn't capitalize on our scoring chances and ended up in a 1-1 tie with Chelmsford. On New Year's day North Reading came to the Ristuccia and we played a solid game in all three zones and earned a well deserved 5-1 victory."

Bruce has been pleased with the effort of his team so far and really likes the direction the team is going in.

"I really like the make-up of the team and I am very happy with their work ethic most of the time. The team is made up of 16 freshmen and 7 sophomores which bodes very well for the future. My goal with this team is to get them to buy in to our system of play. I think that once this team is convinced that the system works and it is fun they will be a difficult opponent every time out," said Bruce.

Freshmen Boys Basketball

The Wildcats have started off to a good record so far this season. They recently defeated Amesbury at home, 50-23. The Wildcats jumped right out on this one, getting off to a 17-2 lead. Marty Bamberg and Ian Sullivan started the game with a hot hand, leading the scoring charge. Sullivan was the game's high scorer, with 12. Brady Detwiler pitched in with seven, as did Omair Shaikh, who had a three in the closing seconds. Nolan Giroux had six points, both treys. Evan Butters also has seven, including a three at the buzzer at halftime.

The Wildcats played solid defense the entire game, and rebounded very efficiently. What the team lacks in size, they make up for in tenacity.

JV Boys Basketball

The Wildcats are standing at 7-2 right now, also notching an impressive win at home over Amesbury. The last time they were at home, the JV team lost a heartbreaker in double overtime. Against Amesbury, they made sure it didn't end that way again. This game was entertaining throughout. The score sawed all the way to the finish.

Amesbury did start to pull away approaching the half, as they accumulated a six-point lead with under a minute left, but a nice three by Steve Stewart cut the lead to three, a lead Stewart would erase in the opening seconds of the second half. He hit another shot from downtown, tying up the game.

Big play down the stretch, offensively and defensively, was contributed by Dan Dellisola, Scott Bonica and Mike Murphy. After more back and forth action, the Wildcats eventually won, 55-53, in a shootout. Dellisola led all scorers with 14. Stewart had nine. Bonica and Murphy has eight. Mike Scola had four and Tyler Whalen and Dylan Reed each had a deuce.

Shawsheen Tech Sports Round-Up

Wrestling team slams down its 11th victory

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Shawsheen Tech wrestling team headed into this season looking to improve on last year's 11-10 mark and with three weeks left in the regular season, they have already accomplished that goal.

With a 2-1 mark in last weekend Lowell Dual Meet Tournament, the Rams improved their record on the season to 11-5, with many of the victories coming over some of the best teams in the area as well as the entire state.

In the Lowell Duals, the Rams picked up wins over Tewksbury (40-35) and Burlington (39-26), while dropping a hard fought battle to Framingham by a score of 34-26. Burlington was ranked 19th in the state entering the meet, while Framingham was ranked 16th. Tewksbury, of course, has come up with many big wins of their own this season against some great competition in the MVC.

"Burlington was 14-2-1 going in and they are a very good team, and Tewksbury is a very legitimate team as well," Shawsheen coach Mark Donovan said. "I think the schedule we wrestle is paying off. I am very happy with the way our kids are wrestling right now. All of their hard work is paying off."

The hard work paid off in a big way for Wilmington resident Mat Compenschi, who picked up three wins on the day, two at his regular weight of 140 and one at 145 against Framingham. He won by pin against Tewksbury.

"We bumped him up against Framingham, and he came through for us," Donovan said. "He is coming along real well this year."

Derek Harding of Tewksbury (112) and Steve McIsaac of Wilmington (heavyweight) picked up two wins each, with Harding winning by pin over Burlington and decision over Tewksbury, while McIsaac decided his Burlington opponent and pinned his Tewksbury foe.

"Derek has been doing very well. Against Tewksbury it was 37-35 going into his match, so if he loses we lose the match. He was down 5-3 with about 30 seconds left, but he came back for the win," Donovan said.

McIsaac's pair of wins were equally impressive, considering the size he is giving up against most of his opponents.

"Steve weighed about 215, but he has been sick so he was down to about 205 and he is wrestling kids that weight 270 and 280 pounds," Donovan said. "He is doing his job. He is over .500 despite giving up all that weight. He's a great kid and he has a great work ethic."

Ryan Ahearn of Wilmington would be a starter on many teams, but with the Rams he has had a tough time cracking the lineup. But when given a chance on Saturday, he made the most of it, coming up with three wins, two by pin and one by major decision. He wrestled at 103 pounds on Saturday, but can fill in for the Rams at anywhere from 103 to 119.

"He's a backup because in practice he just can't beat Spinoso at 103 or Sorenson at 119; but he battles them all and just comes up a little short," Donovan said. "But when he steps in he gets the job done. He is a backup who is not really a backup. We have a lot of faith in him."

Boys Basketball

The Shawsheen boys basketball team is another squad who has already improved on last season although they are just past the mid point of their schedule. With an impressive 54-39 win over CAC crossover rival Greater Lowell on Friday night at home the Rams improved their record to 8-3 overall while they are 5-0 in the CAC Lower Division.

Last season the Rams won seven games all season, and did not defeat any Upper Division foes. It was the second time this season they Rams have knocked off the Upper Division Gryphons.

Against Greater Lowell, they were once again numerous local players leading the way for the Rams, with junior forward Joe Gore leading the charge with a brilliant all around performance that included 15 points and 10 rebounds.

"Joe has been coming up big in the big games for us," Shawsheen coach Bob Hodnett said.

Many of the Rams came up big against the Gryphons, particularly late in the game. While the Rams did not have a very good night from the free throw line, connecting on only 15 of 32 attempts from the charity stripe, they buried their chances when they needed to, nailing several free throws down the stretch to preserve what had been whittled to a two point advantage.

"That was huge for us," Hodnett said. "We did not have a real good night, but the kids knocked them down when they needed to. They hit them down the stretch."

The Rams had led 26-22 at the half before extending their lead to as many as ten points during the second half, but Greater Lowell bounced right back and the lead was never more than five or six points of most of the second stanza.

Senior captain Matt Bruno also had a great all around game, scoring nine points while grabbing ten rebounds and a late game steal that helped preserve the victory.

"Matt is just a kid who works hard," Hodnett said. "He knows he has to work for everything and he does that. He has been getting the job done for us."

Joe Killion of Tewksbury had ten points, while fellow Tewksbury resident Tom Joyce had eight to round out a very balanced Ram attack.

"We are usually pretty well balance with those guys," Hodnett said. "Gore is averaging about 14 points, while Killion is averaging about 12 and Joyce is at about 11. They are our leaders and we also have other guys contributing as well."

While Hodnett and the Rams are certainly feeling very good about themselves and their win total to this point in the season, they are not going to be content with just surpassing last year's win total. They have their sights set on not only a tournament berth, but also a possible Lower Division crown.

"Considering we only won seven games last year, I am very happy with where we are," Hodnett said. "But we talked the other day in practice about not being complacent. We have a lot of huge games coming up. We still have to play Northeast and North Shore from our Division and then we have Lynn Tech and Minuteman still on our schedule as well."

Girls Basketball

The Shawsheen girls basketball team played a pair of league road games this week, suffering a tough 31-23 loss at Tyngsboro on Thursday night, before rebounding with a very impressive 43-28 drubbing of Greater Lowell on Friday night.

While the boys play in the CAC Lower Division the girls play in the Upper Division along with Tyngsboro and Greater Lowell. The 1-1 week puts the Lady Rams record at 6-4 overall and 4-4 in the CAC Upper.

Against Greater Lowell, Shawsheen knew they would be short-handed having lost senior forward Amanda Vacca to injury the night before against Tyngsboro and then they were even more short-handed after junior center Melanie Strazzere found herself in early foul trouble.

But thanks to some solid play off the bench from Katie Hogan of Tewksbury, among others, the Lady Rams were able to overcome these obstacles and get back on the winning track. Hogan scored six points in the winning effort.

"Katie came off the bench and played a key role for us," Shawsheen coach Dick Barris said. "She has been playing very well recently and her development just keeps getting better each time out. I would say that her and Melanie have probably been our two biggest surprises of the season."

Leading the way offensively for the Lady Rams, who led 20-15, at the half was Wilmington resident and team captain Caitlin Gallagher. Gallagher, only a sophomore, continued her recent outstanding play with 15 points and 10 rebounds. Her performance followed up a 16 rebound effort against Tyngsboro the night before.

"She may be the most aggressive girl I have ever coached especially in terms of rebounding," Barris said. "The Tyngsboro game was a great example where she did not have a great shooting night, but still came through with some big rebounds. She just boxes out and goes and gets the rebound. We would not be where we are without her."

Other than Gallagher's dominant scoring effort the scoring was split evenly among many other players, with Hogan's six points going along with six from Kelli Jo Deardorff and five from Samantha St. George. Barris credits the play of his guards for the multiple offensive threats.

"It was pretty spread out as it often is and that has a lot to do with Samantha St. George and Selena Houghton passing the ball well," Barris said.

The night before against Tyngsboro, Shawsheen was unable to get anything going offensively, shooting only 9-for-43 from the floor, but they were still very much in the game, trailing only 25-21 with about four minutes to go before the tigers put on a run to close out the game.

Barris acknowledged that his team had a poor shooting night, but he credited some fine play from Tyngsboro for at least part of their offensive struggles.

"Both teams played good defense, and neither team shot the ball very well," Barris said. "Tyngsboro plays a pretty good brand of defense. They force a lot of turnovers and we missed a lot of chances. Take your hat off to Tyngsboro. They went out the next night and held Greater Lawrence to 35 points." Barris has consistently pointed to his team's games with Tyngsboro and Whittier as very critical to where they will be at the end of the regular season. Shawsheen will get another shot at Tyngsboro at home next Tuesday night and were set to square off against Whittier on the road this Tuesday. Results of the game were not available at press time, but the Lady Rams had knocked off the Wildcats earlier this season. After Whittier, Shawsheen will host Minuteman on Friday night.

"Right now we are 6-4 so of course I would love to get through this week at 8-4 and need only one more win to qualify for the tournament," Barris said. "Right now though, we are only worried about Whittier. If we could sweep them, I know we would be the first team to do that in at least my four years here."

Hockey

The Shawsheen hockey team saw limited action this week, with their only game bring a 3-1 loss to Concord-Carlisle last Thursday night at 8:00 at the Hallenborg Pavilion. The Rams were stifled all night long by the Patriots, as they saw their record on the season drop to 6-2-2 overall.

Shawsheen coach Chuck Baker has been looking for a full 45 minute consistent effort from his team, and did not feel he saw it in this matchup.

"We did not play as well as we could. We only put in about five minutes of consistent, hard play," Baker said. "I don't know what is was, but we never got going. We did not play well, but the last few days at practice we have looked very good, so hopefully we can bounce back."

The Rams actually trailed only 2-1 before the patriots added an empty netter to account for the final, but Baker said the final score did not indicate his team's quality of play.

"In my opinion, it could have been a lot worse," Baker said. "In these games where we are jumping up a division you have to expect an occasional loss, but what you hope is that you will get a great effort and get better from the game. Hopefully we will be better as a result of this."

The Rams only goal came from junior forward Steve Wamboldt of Tewksbury. Wamboldt's goal made the score 1-1 midway through the second period, but Concord-Carlisle came back to take the lead before the second intermission and held on for the victory.

"We definitely had some momentum at that time and I felt like that was the short period of time where we were playing well," Baker said. "But they came back and scored and we did not react well to that."

Shawsheen was set to get back in action on Wednesday night at CAC rival Lynn Tech, followed by a game at the Hallenborg against Minuteman on Thursday night. A road game against non-league rival Pentucket on Saturday will be a good test of how much the Rams have improved.

Without taking anything for granted, the Rams should score fairly easy victories against both Lynn Tech and Minuteman, making their task against a good Pentucket team more difficult in some respects, as they will have to step up their game quite a bit from one opponent to the next.

"That's where the other coaches and I along with the captains have to step in and keep the team at a level," Baker said. "We have to remind them that they are not quite ready for the NHL yet."

A night of fun and fundraising to honor Natalia

To aid the Epilepsy Foundation of Massachusetts and Rhode Island

DOUG WOOD-BOYLE

What would you do if someone fell to the ground in an epileptic seizure? What if that someone were your four-year-old daughter?

People will have the chance to learn more about Epilepsy and to help fund research on the neurological disease during the Epilepsy Foundation of Massachusetts and Rhode Island's Epilepsy Awareness Cabin Fever Frolic, Friday, February 2, 2007, at Antonia's on the Beach, 492 Revere Beach Blvd., Revere. At the same time they will be honoring Wakefield resident Natalia Reed, 4 1/2, who suffers from the disease.

Michelle Reed, Natalia's mother said, "Natalia is being honored as a spokesperson telling about her experiences as a person with Epilepsy."

Although at a young age the girl, a pre-school student at Wakefield's Woodville Elementary School, has had quite a bit of experience. She has been in and out of hospitals since she was born.

Her mother has a locked box full of medications for the child, kept locked up so that Natalia's younger brother Nathan, 3, can't get at them accidentally.

Despite all of the medications, Natalia still suffers from grand mal seizures and to prevent this, a special simulator has been placed in her body. It sends out an electronic jolt that stimulates her nerves in an attempt to stabilize them.

However, the Reeds keep a special magnet handy in case a seizure does occur. It is placed under Natalia's arm and signals the implant to start working in a different signature.

According to Reed, it was noticed that something was wrong with Natalia while she was still a fetus. Doctors noted that she wasn't meeting certain benchmarks of growth while in the womb. She was taken by Cesarean Section at eight months and at that time it was discovered that the baby was born with a hole in her heart.

EPILEPSY FOUNDATION

Massachusetts & Rhode Island

"The neurologists have no idea what caused it," Reed said. "It could be several factors. We just want to know how to fix it."

She added, "We were hoping for brain surgery for Natalia, but because the disease is in the two frontal lobes, that can't happen."

Epilepsy can be hereditary. However, the first sign of it in Natalia's family was when Mrs. Reed suffered a coma while on vacation. It is not known what brought on the coma but it is suspected that she suffered a combination of meningitis and a fall.

However, doctors said that because she was not born with the disease she would probably not pass it on to any children. Of her two children, only Natalia has the affliction.

According to the Epilepsy Foundation, "Epilepsy is a neurological condition that makes people susceptible to seizures. A seizure is a change in sensation, awareness, or behavior brought about by a brief electrical disturbance in the brain."

"Seizures vary from a momentary disruption of the senses, to short periods of unconsciousness or staring spells, to convulsions. Some people have just one type of seizure. Others have more than one type."

Although they look different, all seizures are caused by the same thing: a sudden change in how the cells of the brain send electrical signals to each other.

Reed said, "People don't realize how serious epilepsy is. A seizure can take over your body; the organs can shut down and a person can die."

She added, "I used to be afraid when I seized. I get a horrible smell."

It is that smell that helps her to recognize that a seizure is coming on. At one time she was driving and was able to stop her car and run into a nearby pizza shop to get help before falling to her knees.

As for Natalia, all of her teachers at school are trained in ways to help her. The first thing they do is make her comfortable and then call for the school nurse. The nurse's office is only a few feet away from Natalia's classroom.

According to Reed, Natalia will sometimes turn blue due to the lack of oxygen before she can be brought out of the seizure.

Due to Natalia's affliction, the Reeds are attempting to sell their beautiful, old colonial in a very nice section of Wakefield's West Side. Reed said that the house was too large with too many rooms for Natalia.

Because of the size of the house and its steam heat system, it is too dangerous for Natalia to live there.

The Reeds moved into the house before it was realized how bad Natalia's epilepsy is. Another aspect is that the backyard, although spacious, does not have enough soft earth for a play space.

If Natalia seizes inside the house it is feared she will hit her head on the iron radiators. If she falls outside she will hit her head on the asphalt driveway.

For the most part, when the young girl is at home with her family she stays in a special room that has been child-proofed for her. The room is also outfitted with a monitor so that the parents can keep an ear on the girl while she is sleeping or playing.

Reed turned to the Epilepsy Foundation of Massachusetts and Rhode Island for help in dealing with her daughter's condition. The group then turned around and enlisted the very active woman's assistance in volunteering on a fundraiser held last fall.

Because of her success, the Foundation decided to dedicate their Annual Cabin Fever Frolic event to Natalia. The night promises to be a good one with food, fun, music and both a silent and open auction.

Reed has contacted several local businesses who have donated wonderful items for the auctions and raffles. These include jewelry, trips, restaurant gift certificates, weekend getaways and many other items.

For more information or to buy a ticket, contact Charlene Sturgis 617-506-6041 or e-mail esturgis@efmri.org.

According to the Epilepsy Foundation:

•Epilepsy is one of the most common disorders of the nervous system.

•It affects people of all ages, races, and ethnic backgrounds.

•More than 2.7 million Americans of all ages are living with epilepsy.

•Every year, 181,000 Americans will develop seizures and epilepsy for the first time.

"THE HITCHER" MOVES TOO FAST

"THE HITCHER"

GRADE: **

There are few good horror directors working in films these days. Most disregard the importance of the setup to the situations the characters are in and would much rather get on to the gore, forgetting that the opening scenes have as much to do with the later thrills as the villain does.

"The Hitcher" is directed by Dave Meyers, a man who has made his name at the helm of music videos, so it hard to understand why anyone would hand him the reins of a horror remake. It opens with a young couple nearly running over a hitchhiker one rainy night and then fleeing the scene rather than stopping to see if he's OK.

It turns out they made the right decision, for when he catches up with them at a gas station ... well, I don't want to give too much away, even if this is a remake of the 1986 slasher flick of the same name. Meyers quickly leaves behind any semblance of dread and instead floors it, and the body count starts climbing as fast as the odometer does.

Maybe Meyers felt he was working within the tight time constraints of another Creed or Britney Spears video, but feature films allow the time and space for things such as foreshadowing and build-up anticipation - but at least Meyers doesn't fill the screen with choreographed dance numbers instead of these potential plot boosters.

It probably doesn't help that the couple at risk is bland and buffoonish, even by horror-movie standards. Zachary Knighton is the "whiny boyfriend," while Sophia Bush shows promise in her function as eye candy (at one point she is fleeing from danger in only her underwear, but hey, she stops to cover up a bit by donning a mini-skirt?).

For the killer, the producers have once again gone with a relatively familiar face. The first film featured Rutger Hauer and here we have Sean Bean, Boromir of the "Lord of the Rings" films. Bean does what he can with the material, but the movie is moving too fast for even his talent to help.

Meyers treats plot problems and holes in the script like simply another gaping pothole on an LA freeway, something to hurry over and get past quickly without thinking about them too much.

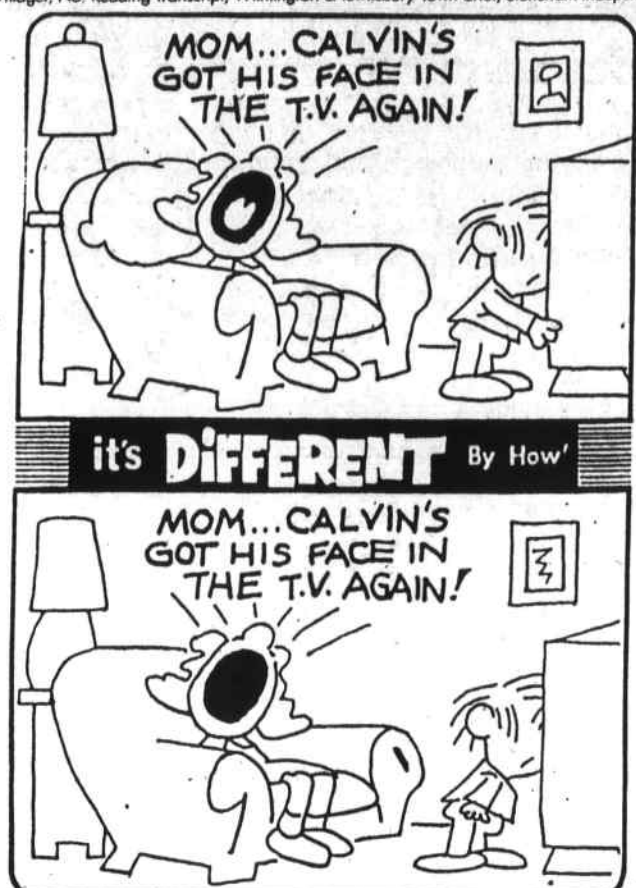

"PRIMEVAL"

GRADE: *

You know how the ads for "Primeval" don't tell you what the movie's about, except to say that it involves the world's most prolific serial killer? Don't be pulled in by the world's most misleading ad campaign, if you can avoid it.

"Primeval" is almost so bad it's good. There's a lot of really stupid stuff in the dark, sloppily edited "Primeval," but my favorite thing is the awe-inspiring self-deception of its producers, who have made a lame into a fascist police state, and the government response is to round up immigrants and place them in cages. A horror movie but who think they're saying something typical day in London is important about African genocide. See, the "history" as insurgent rebels take on most prolific serial killer government security forces the ads talk about is an evil that will conjure up images of African warlord and, of life in Iraq as seen on between attacks by a 25-foot crocodile, "Primeval" periodically stops to observe how wrong genocide is.

The good news is the film isn't long, but the dull "Primeval" doesn't even deliver on the bare minimum this sort of film promises: watching its snotty actors get picked off, one by one, by a first snotty disappearance takes an hour to get to and, by that time, it's hard to tell what the movie is doing worse: the monster-on-the-loose stuff or the political hopelessness.

"CHILDREN OF MEN" GRADE: ****

Pundits have stated for years that the earth is becoming overpopulated with humans, with the end result being the planet's inability to sustain us as a species. But what if suddenly no more babies were born? How would human civilization respond?

That's the premise of "Children of Men," the new disturbing and thought-provoking science fiction thriller in the spirit of "Blade Runner." A loose adaptation of the 1993 novel by British mystery writer P.D. James, the story is brought to the screen by the Mexican director Alfonso Cuarón ("Harry Potter and the Prisoner of Azkaban").

Set in 2027, Cuarón envisions a planet that has become a chaotic, seedy place. It seems that women have all inexplicably become infertile in 2009 and the world is coming apart at the seams. The opening BBC report shows "Day 1000 of the siege of Seattle," while graffiti declares "Last one to die please turn out the light." Great Britain has turned

What follows is a harrowing series of chase scenes as Theo has to navigate his human cargo between the always in pursuit government forces and a small group of rebels that have an entirely different agenda than the Human Project.

Theo can only count on help from one trustworthy friend—an aging stoner holed up in the woods named Jasper (Michael Caine).

The riveting pursuit put this reviewer on the edge of his seat and that alone prompts a recommendation, though the scenes of violence will turn off many people. There is some religious symbolism along with contemporary political issues such as immigration and euthanasia that will prompt discussion, always a sign of a good film.

"WE ARE MARSHALL" GRADE: ***

"We Are Marshall" is one of those movies that's moving and entertaining, which is a bit surprising considering it's a football movie and directed by someone calling himself "McG," whose previ-

PROJECTS, POLICY AND POTENTIAL

ETC et cetera in Lynnfield

"The eighth grade students at Lynnfield Middle School studied the engineering design process by participating in an exciting hands-on activity called Project ETC (Engineering, Teamwork, Creativity)," notes the "Lynnfield Villager."

"This project required students to use the engineering design process to create a marketable product with a bag of miscellaneous materials. The constraint was that students could only utilize the materials assigned to them."

"On the opening day of the project, Paul Ernest, Principal Engineer at Echolab, served as a guest speaker to explain how the engineering design process applies to his work on production video switchers."

"His enthusiastic presentation demonstrated the different phases of the engineering design process as related to a production video switcher his company created for Fenway Park."

"On the third day of the project, Leo Marino, Senior Project Manager and Civil Engineer of HNTB Corporation, served as a guest speaker to provide another detailed look at engineering."

"Marino's thorough and informative presentation included an examination of the various career opportunities credits include 'Charlie's Angels: Full Throttle.'"

"Marshall" tells the true story of one of the roughest comebacks in sports history. Nearly the entire Marshall University football team, most of its coaches and several fans died in a 1970 plane crash, leaving the blue-collar town of Huntington, W.Va., reeling.

After the school president (David Strathairn) is talked out of skipping a season, eccentric replacement coach Jack Lengyel (Matthew McConaughey) and his assistant coach (Matthew Fox) take on a tough task. They have to rebuild the team with three surviving varsity players (led by Anthony Mackie) and a shallow lineup of recruited freshmen.

And they face a town full of skeptical, grief-stricken parents, who wonder if the rickety new team "will just be a reminder of what we've lost."

And McG, working with a handheld camera, just has a really nice feel for story and setting.

ties available in the field of engineering, as well as examples of projects completed by his company such as the Zakim Bridge in Boston. Both of these presentations helped to motivate the future engineers.

"A special thanks is extended to both of the engineer volunteers for their time as well as to all of the parents who donated materials to the project. Appreciation is also extended to the following parents for their contribution to this project: Thalia Markarian, Brenda Schelzi, Stephanie Budd and Kathleen Dario. This project was entirely funded by the Lynnfield Educational Trust. Without their generosity and support, this project would not be possible...."

Making policy in Woburn

"The city's School Committee voted unanimously to appropriate nearly $9,000 for a comprehensive update of the district's policy manual," notes the Woburn edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Joining the educational board at its meeting, Mike Gilbert, a field representative for the Mass. Association of School Committees (MASC) detailed three different ways to approach the undertaking."

"The district's policy manual governs a plethora of procedures and regulations across the district, from how state and federal mandates are met in the city to day-to-day expectations of school employees."

"Under the first option, which costs $500, MASC officials would provide the School Committee with its own thick manual of up-to-date policies and the group could perform the task on its own."

"The second choice, which the educational board ultimately selected, entailed having a MASC official review each of Woburn's guidelines, update, add, and amend certain policies, and ultimately present the city with the finished product...."

The best of the best in North Reading

"Twelve North Reading Middle School students were chosen to represent Massachusetts at the National Young Leaders State Conference for the New England region this winter," notes the "North Reading Transcript."

"Chosen by their Language Arts teacher, this select group of students was chosen based on scholastic merit, maturity and responsibility to represent North Reading at this unique leadership program for exceptional young people. These students have demonstrated a strong leadership potential, both at their school and in the community. Middle School Principal Richard Hodges expressed his enthusiasm and pride, saying, 'Despite the problems we face in this country and beyond, I continue to be encouraged and impressed with the young people at North Reading Middle School. These twelve students, in particular, offer us great hope as they set out daily to make a positive difference in the lives of others.'"

"The North Reading Middle School students who were selected are: Dianna Leonard, Ryan Pantaleo, Nicolas Andrea, Courtney Smith, Theresa Faller, Brittney Venezia, Taylor Schille, Chris Kerrigan, Laura McBride, Jonathan Murray, Tarryn Hachey and Taylor Moyette...."

GETTING SERIOUS IN 2007

Ready, set, go in Wakefield

Wakefield Town Clerk Mary K. Galvin has announced some important 2007 dates relating to local politics and voter registration," notes the Wakefield edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"The spring Town Meeting is scheduled to take place on April 2, 2007.

"The annual spring Town Election date has been set for Tuesday, April 24, 2007. In order to run in the election, you must be a Wakefield resident.

"Local residents who wish to run must submit nomination papers with a total of 50 signatures from registered voters. Nomination papers for the April 24 Town Election are now available at the Town Clerk's office.

"Candidates will have just over two months to collect their 50 signatures and to submit their nomination papers to the Town Clerk's office. The deadline for submitting nomination papers to the Town Clerk for certification is Tuesday, March 6 at 5:00 p.m.

"Potential Town Election candidates should also mark their calendars with the date of Thursday, March 22, as this is the deadline for withdrawing nomination papers. This date is also the final day to formally object to a candidate's nomination.

"In order to be eligible to vote in the April 2 Town Meeting or the April 24 Town Election, you must be a registered voter in the Town of Wakefield as of Tuesday, March 13, 2007.

"The date of March 13 will serve as the final day to register to vote in time for the Spring Town Meeting and Town Election. On this date, the Town Clerk's office inside the Town Hall will be open extended hours from 8:30 a.m. through 8:00 p.m. in order to accommodate last minute registrations. Anyone who registers to vote after this date will not be able to vote in the April 24 Town Election or the April 2 Town Meeting.

"The actual election will take place on Tuesday, April 24. The town's five polling locations for the seven Wakefield precincts will be open from 7:00 a.m. through 8:00 p.m.

"Questions? Contact the office of Wakefield Town Clerk Mary K. Galvin, located on the first floor of the William J. Lee Memorial Town Hall at 1 Lafayette Street in Wakefield. The office is open Mondays through Fridays from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Call the Town Clerk's office at 781-246-6383."

Settling in, in Tewksbury

"In a brief meeting selectmen and firefighters came together to sign a contract that's been four months in the making. The contract settlement was due, in part, to an innovative solution proposed by selectman John Ryan that defers raises for this fiscal year and helps keep the town budget above water.

"By signing now, the firefighters' union became the first union in town to settle their contract, while the teachers' union, whose contract talks with the School Committee have become contentious and have garnered a number of headlines, continue to negotiate. Outside the Selectmen meeting, twenty-five Tewksbury teachers assembled with signs, demonstrating their resolve in seeking a 'fair and equitable' contract solution. One sign stated, 'An apple a day doesn't pay the bills.' The contingent of teachers called to demonstrate are all town residents as well as town employees.

"Selectman Joe Gill praised representatives of the International Association of Firefighters (IAFF) on hand to sign the agreements, including Union President Joe Kerns.

"This makes me very happy," said Gill. "You are the first ones on board. We thank you very much for your efforts...."

Halfway there in Stoneham

"Stoneham Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Sharon Iovanni is pleased to announce the election of Directors and Officers," notes the "Stoneham Independent."

"Board Members Dr. Joseph Connelly (Superintendent of Stoneham Schools) and Mark Whitney (Winchester Hospital) were elected to a second three-year term and Annemarie Walsh (NSTAR) was elected to her first three-year term, after completing the term of another board member in 2006. Members Anthony Clark (DCS Services, Inc.) and Michael F. Falvey (StonehamBank) were elected to their first three-year term.

"Mr. Clark resides in Stoneham with his wife Laura and daughters Angela and Ariana. As Vice President of DCS Services, Inc., Anthony is responsible for the company's market share growth, public relations and quality assurance. He proudly notes that his company won BOMA Affiliate Company of the Year and has appeared annually in the Boston Business Journal's Top 25 Largest Janitorial Companies.

"Mr. Falvey is a Vice President for Commercial Loans at StonehamBank, marking his one year anniversary and resides in Winthrop. Michael, who has three sons - Nicholas, David and Ian - previously served on the Board of the Melrose Chamber of Commerce and the Clarendon Hill Towers Tenant Association....

"In addition, the Board reorganized for the new Chamber year. Mario Patalano, Esq., assumes the Presidency, former Treasurer Melissa Symes will serve as Vice President, new board member Michael Falvey will hold the Treasurer's position and Board Member Stephen DeCrescenzo (EXIT Personal Choice Realty) serves as Clerk. The Executive Committee also includes Past President Deborah Catalano (Catalano Public Relations and Editorial Services, Inc.). The officers serve through September, 2007.... *MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA

The best winning percentage by a team in a season is held by the 1929-30 Bruins, they lost only 5 games for a winning percentage of .875. However, there was a team that beat the Bruins three times that season. Who was the team?

Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

*JACQUI BARRETT, UMASS LOWELL (FR., WOBURN, MA.)

was named the Northeast-10 Women's Field Freshman of the Week for the third straight time. Barrett, of UMass Lowell (Fr., Woburn, MA), was named the Northeast-10 Women's Field Freshman of the Week for the third straight time. Jacqui won the shot put at the Tufts Jumbo Invitational with a throw of 41' 11.5". The non-scoring meet consisted of NCAA Division II and III colleges as well as several athletes representing postgraduate track and field clubs.

*SOPHOMORE FORWARD VAL BECKWITH (WOBURN, MASS.)

had 14 points, five boards, and a game-high six steals for the Bates College Bobcats in a 69-56 win over Trinity College.

*AUSTIN PREP GOALIE RYAN CASEY

was selected as the recipient of the Saugus Federal Credit Union Holiday Classic's Division 1 Tom O'Hearn Award for Best Defense for the second consecutive year. Retired Kasabuski Rink Manager Tom O'Hearn presented Ryan with his trophy during the awards ceremony following a two-day tournament.

In what many described as a hard-fought battle, Malden Catholic defeated two-time Division 1 winner AUSTIN PREP by a close score of 3-2, while St. Mary's of Lynn took home the Division 2 trophy with a 4-1 win over Saugus High School during the Saugus Federal Credit Union's (SFCU) 18th Annual Holiday Classic. Eight teams, representing private and public high schools from Division 1 and 2 participated in the 2006 SFCU-sponsored tournament held at the Kasabuski Arena in Saugus. In addition to the winning and second place teams, competing teams included Boston Latin, Lynnfield, Westford Academy and St. Bernards. Following the two-day tournament, the players and coaches attended a banquet at Prince Restaurant in Saugus. Several individual players were recognized for their play, with awards presented to the individual recipients.

Division 1 awards were presented to Malden Catholic's Mike Dimare, winner of the Castraberti Family MVP Award and the Ed White Best Offense Award. The winner of the Tom O'Hearn Best Defense Award was presented to Ryan Casey of Austin Prep.

Five of the thirteen members are first year players, but their hard work, love of the game and team camaraderie gave the impression that they were seasoned hockey players.

Need some help with this week's question? The answer is one of the following: Chicago Blackhawks, Detroit Cougars, New York Rangers, or the Montreal Maroons.

*WAKEFIELD NATIVE AND SENIOR BLUELINER KEVIN GRENHAM has left the Arlington Catholic hockey program to return to the Warriors and give them a legitimate No. 1 defenseman in the Middlesex League.

MORGAN HOSKING OF NORTH READING was a junior member of the Westfield State women's volleyball team that finished the season with a 16-16 overall record and placed second in the Mass. State Conference with a 5-1 record. The 5-10 outside hitter/middle blocker was one of the team's top reserve players.

*WOBURN'S KRISTEN DWYER

a freshman forward for the Trinity College women's basketball team, had 10 points in the team's season opener, a 67-48 win over Regis College.

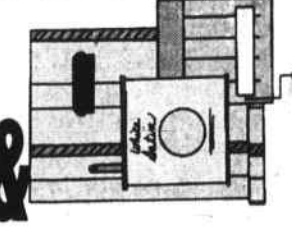

*ANSWER TO THIS WEEK'S TRIVIA QUESTION:

The correct answer is the Chicago Blackhawks.

FABULOUS FRIENDS AT LINDEN TREE

On Saturday, February 10, the Linden Tree Coffeehouse continues its 22nd series of acoustic music with fabulous friends from far away. First time in Wakefield will be Tim Grimm, an Indiana Singer-songwriter, actor, and hay farmer. Returning to the Linden Tree stage is Heidi Muller with her new singing partner Bob Webb from West Virginia.

Tim Grimm is a first rate songwriter. He closely observes everyday life, its moments of joy and pleasure. After a successful career as an actor in Los Angeles in TV's Reasonable Doubts and feature films, Tim and his wife moved back to an Indiana farmhouse. There he began writing songs again, releasing his new country-folk album, Heart Land, to critical acclaim.
